

No explanation was given in the calling of the seven policemen for a grand jury appearance today.

The extensive investigation by Dowd's office and the grand jury into the alleged pay-offs began early in June. The inquiry has moved at a faster pace since Dowd's return recently from Washington.

INDIANS RIOTING IN BOMBAY OVER BLOODSHED IN PORTUGUESE GOA

Mobs Hoist Flag Atop Consulate, Force Many Businesses to Close — Police Open Fire on Demonstrators.

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 16 (AP)—Inflamed over bloodshed in Portuguese India, frenzied mobs of Indians rioted through Bombay today. They hoisted the Indian flag over the Portuguese consulate, forced newspapers, shops and business houses to close, and surrounded government buildings.

Demonstrators shouted "Nehru—leave Delhi and lead us to Goa!" as they stoned the consulate and smashed its windows. The consulate personnel had been evacuated earlier.

Police opened fire on the mob, wounding three demonstrators. Several bus and streetcar conductors were hurt in attacks on their vehicles as the mob enforced a general strike throughout the city.

March Past Consulate.—Beginning at dawn, more than 150,000 Indians marched past the consulate, screaming demands for military action against the three small Portuguese territories north and south of Bombay. Guards there killed an undetermined number of "non-violent" Indian marchers demanding the cession of the areas to India.

Estimates of the dead ranged from 15 to as high as 30. In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru told Parliament his Government would not be "provoked" by the killings into military action against Portugal. He said he would continue to seek the transfer of Goa and the last foreign territory in the country, by peaceful means.

Shops were also closed throughout New Delhi by a 24-hour protest strike.

Nehru said latest information from the Bombay state government put the toll in the march into the Portuguese colonies at 15 dead and 28 wounded but he said the casualties might have been greater. He reported some 800 demonstrators were still in Goa and Diu, two of the settlements, and said there was no information on what had happened to them.

Portugal's Communique.—In Lisbon, the Portuguese Foreign Ministry said an unknown number of Indians had been killed and wounded yesterday. It said "the Portuguese authorities were obliged to meet violence with violence. . . . The responsibility for this bloodshed rests entirely upon the persons who encouraged, permitted and abetted the invasion."

The Portuguese communique said the Indian demonstrators were expelled, "although a few individuals may still lurk in less accessible areas." The communique added: "The Portuguese Government formally protests to the Government of India against the serious violations of sovereignty perpetrated."

Police frequently clashed with the Bombay rioters.

A cordon of 300 police thrown around the Portuguese consulate held off the demonstrators for two hours before they broke through and raised the flag.

Another mob heading for the consulate surrounded the Taj Mahal Hotel, where many foreign tourists stay. Police wielding clubs charged and drove the crowd away. Other rioters smashed the doors of the Majestic Hotel.

Reports from all over the city said demonstrators, marching several miles were converging on the consulate.

Police tried to disperse crowds in front of a building housing the Bombay state government.

United Press reported one mob stripped the British flag from the automobile of British High Commissioner C. H. Bayliss as he was walking toward it. Bayliss was permitted to proceed after his Indian employees persuaded the crowd to let him go.

Because of the outbreak, organizers of the strike that closed shops, restaurants and plants today canceled a big procession that was to have marched on the consulate this afternoon.

Angry crowds surrounded offices of the Times of India, leading English-language newspaper in western India, as well as other newspapers and forced them to close.

The Reserve Bank of India suspended all business as a big crowd surged around it.

Vehicles Halted.—Students and workers lay in the streets to halt public transport vehicles. Other rioters stopped hundreds of cars and taxicabs and forced the occupants to get out and join the demonstration.

Several thousand Indian Nationalist demonstrators marched into Portuguese Goa, Damão and Diu yesterday on the eighth anniversary of India's independence from Britain. They sought to arouse popular support for the Indian campaign to take over the areas, the last foreign territories in the country.

Reinforced Portuguese border guards opened fire on some of the marchers, drove others back into India with clubs and arrested many of them. The Indian demonstrators called themselves Satyagrahis, followers of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi's tactic of non-violence and passive resistance. Organizers of the march finally suspended further infiltration and said they would devise "a new strategy."

United Press correspondent James Berry reported from Goa that police rushed reinforcements to two points along the

RUSSIA WELCOMES JUSTICE DOUGLAS, ONCE CALLED SPY

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP)—United States Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who used to be regarded by the Russians as a spy, was the subject of a friendly interview broadcast by the Moscow Radio today. He is touring the Soviet Union with Robert F. Kennedy, counsel for the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

The Moscow Radio said one of its correspondents, talking with Douglas at the Kaganovich Co-operative farm near Tashkent, South Kazakhstan, asked the justice how the Soviet people were receiving him.

"Very well," Douglas was quoted as replying. "The people here are very friendly and very kind."

The broadcast said Douglas told the interviewer he and Kennedy had chosen their own route and were free to go where they pleased. They are now heading into Siberia.

In 1949 and 1951, when Douglas was mountain climbing in Turkey and Tibet, the Moscow Radio accused him of using that as a blind for spying on the Soviet Union.

4½ BILLION DOLLAR SUIT AGAINST TAX AGENT DISMISSED

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Aug. 16 (AP)—United States District Judge Waldo Rogers yesterday dismissed a suit for $4,500,000 damages because of lack of prosecution.

Lester C. Plummer of Artesia failed for the second time to appear in his suit against an internal revenue collector. Plummer was also absent when the case first came up last month.

He was seeking the astronomical sum in a complaint against tax agent C. Buck Caviness. He said Caviness took $83.70 from his bank account for self-employment social security taxes. Plummer then filed the suit, saying he was putting it "in terms of the Government can understand."

In dismissing the suit, Judge Rogers also ordered the files sealed because of derogatory remarks against the courts contained in it.

United States Attorney Paul Larrazola had requested dismissal of the suit earlier on ground it was invalid. He contended that the Government had not granted permission to be sued.

jungle border between India and Goa after receiving reports the Indians were using arms. The march had only half-hearted support from Nehru, who opposes such mass action because of the danger of just such bloodshed as occurred. Although he has been insistent in his demands that Portugal relinquish Goa, he has said repeatedly India would gain the territory only by peaceful means.

The "Delhi citizen's Goa liberation front" called the general strike in the capital. The front has strong backing from Socialist, Communist and rightist groups. Nehru's governing Congress party has not endorsed the organization, but some Congress members belong.

ARGENTINE CROWD ROUTED BY POLICE USING TEAR GAS

Students Shout Insults Against Government — Plot on Peron's Life Charged.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 16 (AP)—Police used tear gas to rout 500 students shouting insults against the Peron Government today in the city of Eva Peron.

Forty-one of the noisy demonstrators were seized in the first disorder since officials said yesterday that "Catholic nationalists" and opposition politicians had plotted to shoot President Juan D. Peron. Students were singled out as among the top culprits in the alleged plot.

The students in Eva Peron, a city 40 miles south of here which formerly was called La Plata, assembled in the streets and began shouting insults.

With the nation in a state of extreme tension as a result of yesterday's official statements, police set upon them at once and broke up their demonstration.

50 Arrests Reported.—Police said more than 50 persons had been arrested in connection with the alleged plot, but other sources indicated as many as 200 might have been jailed.

Previous announcements of such plots in the nine years of Peron's regime have signaled widespread roundups of his enemies.

The government crackdown could signal the end of the "pacification" campaign Peron opened after the abortive navy uprising two months ago.

It could mean also a new flareup in the dispute between the President and the Roman Catholic church, mostly dormant since the revolt—and a new crackdown on the opposition parties, which have refused to go along with the pacification campaign unless the government ends its restrictive measures.

Adding to the unrest were new anti-government demonstrations, in front of Buenos Aires' Metropolitan Cathedral last night and earlier yesterday in the central Argentine city of Cordoba. Police used tear gas and fire hoses to scatter the crowds, arresting about 40 demonstrators in the capital and 15 in Cordoba.

There were no signs of special measures to protect the President. The government announcement said the plotters had planned to shoot him yesterday from an apartment they had rented on the route along

RECORD 140 HIT BY INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT IN JULY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (UP)—The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production hit a record high of 140 in July. This was an advance of one point from June on a seasonally adjusted basis and a jump of 14 per cent above the index figure for a year ago.

July was the eleventh straight month in which an advance was recorded.

In another development on the economic front, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported new housing starts declined 11 per cent in July. The drop was principally due to a voluntary tightening up on mortgage money as a result of competition for loans of all types.

which he usually drove between his office and his home.

Further Plot Charged.—The announcement charged that the conspirators planned to kill Maj. Gen. Franklin Lucero, the army minister who quashed the June revolt, and other top officials and army commanders, and to launch a wave of terror by disrupting power lines, communications, radio stations and public utilities.

The government singled out as ringleaders in the plot (1) Mario Amadeo, a Catholic lawyer and former top diplomat; (2) David Michel Torino, a leader of the opposition Radical party; (3) an unidentified Radical party member of Congress there are only 12; and (4) leaders of the Democratic conservative party, whose president made a radio speech last week criticizing the Peron administration.

Amadeo has been in hiding since the June revolt. He caused a sensation last month by issuing printed pamphlets calling on the army to oust Peron.

Torino Still Free.—Torino was still free last night. He received reporters at his home and said he was "surprised" at the announcement of the plot in the afternoon papers.

Government sources said seven members of a "terrorist group" had been arrested. They were identified as Ricardo Mario Coppa Oliver, alleged leader; Andres Alfredo Cornejo, Eduardo Alfio Canellini, Raul Horacio Narvaez, Anibal Ruiz Moreno Jr., Jorge Osvaldo Francisco and Enzo Jorge Ramirez. Three other members identified only as Urtubey, Moran and Barbosa, were reported to have fled.

The public demonstrations in Buenos Aires and Cordoba were in protest over the government's removal of yesterday's Catholic Feast of the Assumption from the list of official holidays.

In the capital, some 400 persons collected in the central Plaza de Mayo, shouting "Hasta la muerte" and "Liberty! Liberty!" During the police action against them four shots were fired but nobody was reported hurt.

Dulles Welcomes Russian Plan To Cut Armed Forces by 640,000

Says It Seems to Show Kremlin Awareness of West's Peaceful Aims—Cites Red Reserves.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today welcomed the announced decision of Soviet Russia to reduce its armed forces by 640,000 men, saying it appeared to reflect Soviet recognition of the peaceful purposes of the United States and its allies.

He added that as far as he was aware this would be the first significant reduction in Russian armed manpower in eight years but he pointed out that no official information has ever been given as to the size of Soviet armed forces and reserves, their allocation among the various services or the weapons systems at their disposal.

In a formal statement read at his press conference, the Secretary said further:

"Even after this reduction, however, Soviet standing forces will certainly be much larger than those of the United States. Moreover, the number of men under arms is only one element of military strength. The Soviet Union also maintains very large organized reserves of men and equipment capable of being mobilized rapidly. And the capacity to utilize modern weapons greatly affects the value of men numbers in the armed forces. Thus, the United States has been able to cut its armed forces from 3,500,000 to 2,900,000 over the past two years."

Tied to Eisenhower Statement.—Dulles tied in the Russian announcement with President Eisenhower's declaration at Geneva last month that the United States will never be a party to aggression.

He said Johnson would stay at Geneva as long as there were prospects of getting the civilians out of China.

The Secretary said Britain's objection to the American proposal for publication of the official record made at the Geneva summit conference was mostly a misunderstanding of what was planned to do. He said the United States wanted to compile only the records already made public, such as actual texts or the substance of texts reported by the press. There was no intention, he added, to make public verbatim reports of what was said around the table by the heads of Government. He disclosed that there was no "agreed" reporting of these talks.

Dulles said the Western Allies had no plans to ask for an explanation of the Kremlin decision to keep Russian troops in Hungary, now that the Austrian peace treaty has been signed.

the Russians would accept the American plan for full and effective information about military establishment and then to build the plan.

"Full Information Needed."—In his formal statement, he said the various factors involved "indicate" why full information regarding armed forces and effective inspection to verify the facts are necessary "for any meaningful and intelligent approach to the problem of international control and reduction of armament. The United States has long sought to build this foundation."

Speaking of the Eisenhower proposal, he did not note that Premier Bulganin had first seemingly rejected and then reversed himself on aerial inspection. He cautiously observed in his formal statement that "the United States hopes the U. N. subcommittee on disarmament can make progress toward establishing a reliable international system of inspection as it resumes its activities in New York two weeks from now."

On Release of Civilians.—The Secretary was equally cautious on the prospect for immediate release of American civilians being held by the Red Chinese, the subject of discussions at Geneva between American Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Ambassador Wang Pingnan of Communist China. He said he had not been officially informed of today's talks but so far no significant progress had been made.

He recalled that the talks had started 14 months ago, first at the ambassadorial level, then at the consular level and are back again at the ambassadorial level. He said Johnson would stay at Geneva as long as there were prospects of getting the civilians out of China.

HURRICANE DIANE DRIVES TOWARD CAROLINA COAST

Intensity and Forward Movement of Storm Are Slightly Diminished.

CHARLESTON, S.C., Aug. 16 (AP)—Hurricane Diane, its intensity and forward movement slightly diminished, but still dangerous, drove menacingly toward the Carolina coast today. With possibilities of a curve northward, the coast north of Wilmington, S.C., to the Virginia Capes was put on hurricane alert. Hurricane warnings were up south of there to Fernandina, Fla.

The Weather Bureau in a 2 p.m. advisory placed this fourth hurricane of the season 205 miles southeast of Myrtle Beach, S.C., its center winds reduced from 115 to 100 miles an hour. The movement remained west-northwest (more west than north) at 10 miles an hour.

Slow Turn Expected.—An advisory at 11 a.m. said: "Continued movement at about 10 miles per hour toward the west-northwest with a slow turn toward the northwest later today or tonight is expected. This course should bring the center to the upper South Carolina or the North Carolina coast Wednesday morning."

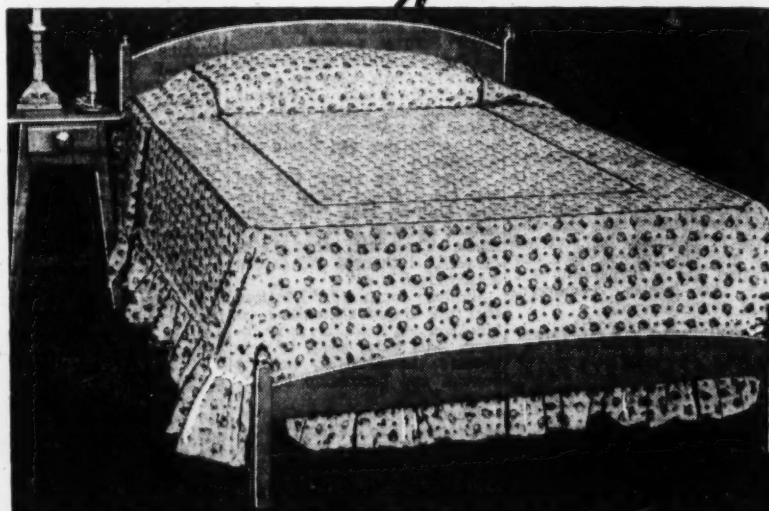

"Winds will increase slowly along the North and South Carolina coast today and should reach gale (39 to 54 miles an hour) to hurricane (above 75 miles an hour) force late tonight or early Wednesday. Tides are now reported one to four feet above normal and should reach six to eight feet above normal near and for 50 miles east of where the center crosses the coast."

The latest reports appeared to have relieved Georgia coast points from immediate danger. The possibility of a curve to the northward placed the North Carolina coast in acute danger. Only last week it was swept by Hurricane Connie.

Tides 9 Feet Above Normal.—Marines with bulldozers joined highway crews, civilian volunteers and convicts today in throwing up sand breakwaters along North Carolina's beaches. Connie's high tides washed away many of the dunes which protect beach buildings.

"It scares me to death to think what would happen if another storm struck," said North Carolina's Gov. Luther Hodges after a 600-mile flight over the stricken area.

REASSESSMENT IN COUNTY TOPS STATE'S FIGURES BY $7,851,058

New Totals Are Result of Increase in Real Estate, Personal Property Valuations Ordered by Board.

Assessed valuation of real estate and personal property in St. Louis county has been increased from $592,061,430 to $600,886,120, which is $7,851,058 more than the valuation placed on it by the Missouri Tax Commission, it was announced yesterday.

The figures, certified to the commission by Leo E. Sievers, St. Louis county clerk, resulted from a rise of 60 per cent in the assessed valuation of city lots and 85 per cent in farm acreage. The reassessment was ordered by the state commission earlier this year.

Sievers reported that city lots were assessed by the county at $629,743,140, a total of $4,726,516 higher than the figure set by the state. This was due largely, he said, to a rise above the state figure of more than $3,000,000 in the value of commercial property in Clayton.

Farm acreage in the county was assessed at $147,985,850 against the state's figure of $144,875,295, a difference of $3,110,555.

A total of 217,006 city lots was re-assessed by the Board of Equalization. The previous assessed value was $390,635,390 and a valuation of $239,107,750 was added by the county.

Total acreage of farm land was 228,504. Previous assessed valuation was $78,310,970 and the valuation added by the county was $69,670,880.

Personal property was reassessed from $123,115,070 to $123,157,130, an addition of $42,060. Most of the increase was due to a reappraisal of the value of cattle and hogs ordered by the State Tax Commission.

The county assessed 142,081 motor vehicles, including airplanes, at a total valuation of $63,217,400. Household property was assessed at $13,929,210, 497, horses at $16,940, 166 mules at $28,107, 707 fowls at $45,10, 94 bee colonies at $450 and all other personal property at $44,796,590.

HONEYMOON IS DELAYED BY BRIDE'S JURY DUTY

The honeymoon of Raymond L. Anderson, 2020A North Broadway, was delayed yesterday when he had to report for jury duty in the court of Magistrate Thomas Gabbert, who had married Anderson and his bride Saturday.

After the wedding, Anderson remarked that he had to be back in court Monday, Gabbert said. A foundry worker, Anderson was assigned by coincidence to Gabbert's court for trial of a damage suit, but was stricken from the panel by one of the attorneys.

However, the honeymoon is still delayed because he is liable for jury service the rest of the week. "He can take some consolation in the fact that he won't have to serve again for at least two years," Gabbert said.

The gift commemorates the 100th anniversary of B'nai B'rith, Jewish fraternal organization.

CITY LOSES TITLE TO ITS BARRACKS HOSPITAL TRACT

A 252-acre tract at Jefferson Barracks, which the City of St. Louis obtained in 1951 as a hospital site, has reverted to Federal Government ownership because the city did not proceed with the project, it was learned today.

Last year, after the city decided it could not afford to convert existing buildings there for hospital use, efforts were made to transfer the property to St. Louis county, which wanted it for health and welfare purposes.

However, officials discovered that such a direct transfer could not be made and that instead the property had to go back to the United States. If the Government does not want the land for itself, the county still might be able to obtain it, provided plans for its use are acceptable.

Anderson, a foundry worker of 8020A North Broadway, was stricken from the panel by one of the attorneys in a damage suit trial, but was prevented from starting his honeymoon because he was liable for jury duty the rest of the week.

Gabbert interceded with Judge Killoren, who decided there were enough jurors available for the remaining cases this week and excused Anderson from further service. "We didn't want to be a party to any friction between the man and his wife. We've got to work along with Cupid," Judge Killoren observed.

ENTIRE BUILDING STOLEN—SHANTY ON PARKING LOT

Police were searching today for a wooden shanty—size 5 feet square and 8 feet high. Its two windows, door and padlock also are missing. In fact, the entire building was stolen sometime during the weekend from a parking lot at Sixteenth and Olive streets, where it was used as an office.

Police also are looking for anyone in the neighborhood who witnessed the theft because the thieves apparently picked up the shanty and carried it away without dismantling it.

Jerome Klein, operator of the lot, said he valued the building at $100.

FRONTENAC FAILS TO STOP HEARING ON STORE CENTER

A temporary injunction asked by the City of Frontenac to prevent a hearing on an application by the Doctors' Medical Foundation to rezone a 30-acre tract was denied yesterday at Clayton by Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss.

The application is scheduled to be heard tonight by the St. Louis County Planning Commission. The foundation plans to lease the tract at Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard for a medical office building and an adjacent retail shopping center, if it can be rezoned from a single-family to a commercial classification.

Court action will be taken later on other portions of the Frontenac suit, which seeks to annex the 30 acres and an additional 78 acres owned by the foundation, and asks a permanent injunction to prevent the group from using the area for any purposes other than a medical building.

His firm was later known as the Diagraph Stencil Machine Co. He sold his interest in it and practiced patent law before he retired about 25 years ago.

KILLS MAN WHO SERVED TIME FOR SHOOTING HIM

Vincent Biondo Fatally Wounds Henry A. Steeg Jr. in Renewal of Feud in Tavern.

Henry A. Steeg Jr., who served a term in the Intermediate Reformatory at Alcoa for shooting Vincent Biondo, a tavern owner, was shot to death by Biondo last night in a renewal of the old feud.

The fatal shooting occurred at 11:20 p.m. in Biondo's Starlight Cafe at 901 O'Fallon street. Biondo, a professional bondsman, told police he fired four times with a .45 caliber automatic pistol as Steeg advanced toward him with a knife, three shots hitting Steeg in the abdomen and one in the wrist.

Steeg, 24 years old, died an hour and a half later at City Hospital.

Steeg was released Friday from the Alcoa reformatory after serving 17 months on a charge of assault with intent to kill Biondo in the shooting at the tavern Jan. 28, 1954.

Biondo told police that Steeg came to his tavern Saturday and began drinking. Steeg's mother, who lives in the 1200 block of North Kingshighway, phoned Biondo Saturday, Biondo said, and asked if her son was there. Told to go home, she then informed Biondo that Steeg was still holding a grudge and that if "anything happens it's your fault," Biondo said.

"Steeg came to my tavern again last night," Biondo was quoted as saying. "He ordered beer. I refused to serve him. He asked to talk to me privately, and we went to my office in the rear of the tavern."

Biondo said he sat at his desk with Steeg facing him. Steeg suddenly began threatening him, Biondo said, and drew a hunting knife which he had concealed under his trousers belt.

As Steeg advanced, Biondo related, Biondo reached in the drawer of the desk and grabbed his pistol. He fired four times and Steeg slumped to the floor.

After Steeg was taken to the hospital, Biondo surrendered to police and was booked suspected of homicide. He is 31 years old and lives in an apartment above the tavern.

The 1954 shooting occurred after Steeg had been ejected from Biondo's tavern for being unruly. He returned with a shotgun and fired one shot at Biondo. Biondo fired six shots in return with his pistol. Steeg suffered a serious chest wound and Biondo was treated for a wound in the chest.

The measure, passed by the Pine Lawn Board of Aldermen, is designed to curb juveniles in the habit of circulating in the late evening and early morning hours. Under the law, the responsibility for enforcing the curfew is placed on parents and guardians.

Adults who permit their charges to violate the curfew may be fined from $5 to $100. The ban on unaccompanied youngsters on the streets or in public places lasts until 6 a.m., although youths who must be out late for legitimate reasons may get special police department permits.

A similar curfew, requiring children under 17 to be off the streets after 11 p.m. on weekdays and Saturdays, was adopted last year by the city of St. Louis. Several other communities in St. Louis county have imposed curfews on juveniles.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN FIELD WITH RIFLE LYING NEARBY

James F. Williams, a salesman, was found dead today lying near his automobile in a field near Lindbergh boulevard, about one fourth of a mile east of Lemay Ferry road, Mehlville. He had been shot in the head.

County Patrolman William Fredericksen, who discovered the body, said a .22-caliber rifle with one discharged cartridge was nearby. In the automobile were several letters addressed to members of Williams' family.

Fredericksen said the letters stated Williams was worried about financial problems and intended to take his own life. He was 49 years old and lived at 4940 Lindenwood avenue.

YOUTH 'MISSING' ON 20-MILE SWIM SHOWS UP ON FOOT

Patrick J. Timlin, reported missing early today in an effort to swim the Mississippi river from the Alton dam to McKinley Bridge, walked into the home of his parents at 3328 North Fourteenth street, shortly before noon.

His father, Joseph J. Timlin, told the Post-Dispatch the youth reported he had given up his attempt after daylight today and came ashore at Carlie avenue, in the north part of St. Louis.

From there, the youth said he walked to the home of a friend where he borrowed a pair of trousers and some shoes, before going home. Timlin had set out on his attempted 20-mile swim, clad in black swimming trunks, about 8 o'clock last night.

Some companions with whom he had driven to Alton waited for him at the bridge until about 1:30 a.m. and then reported the incident to police, who notified the Coast Guard. Timlin is 18 years old and was graduated in June from McBride High School. His father, relieved when his son returned, said the youth would be reprimanded.

Timlin said he was in the yard of their home near the beach, and a .38 caliber Colt revolver was on the ground where it had apparently dropped from his right hand, officials said.

Pompano, Beach police said Schmid had apparently shot himself through the head by placing the weapon in his mouth.

Schmid retired to Pompano Beach, nine miles north of Fort Lauderdale, less than a year ago after a long career here. In addition to serving as county judge, he was a member of the first seven-man county council.

A native of St. Louis county, he began as a title examiner and clerk in probate court and was later married to a former clerk in the county's office. From 1920 to 1934 he was recorder of deeds in the county, and was a powerful figure in county politics during that period.

He was the Republican nominee for sheriff in 1928, at a time when he and former Circuit Clerk Oscar Jacobsmeyer headed a Republican faction which was successful in defeating the Republican machine headed by Fred Esser. But after he gained the nomination, Schmid resigned and the Republican committee named Alfred G. Lill, who was later elected.

In 1942, Schmid was elected as associate judge of the County Court, First district, and was re-elected for four-year terms in 1944 and 1948. In 1950, he was elected to the first St. Louis County Council from the Third district. Two years later, he resigned because of ill health.

During his later years, Schmid was an insurance broker with offices at Clayton. His home was in Creve Coeur. He was divorced from his first wife, Mrs. Stella Goebel Schmid, in 1929, and married Mrs. Dorothy G. Kraft, a widow, in 1943.

Fire Routes Three Families, SMOKE OVERCOMES FIREMEN One fireman was overcome by smoke last night when fighting a fire in a three-story brick residence at 4123 Maryland avenue. Three families living in the building fled without injury.

The fireman, George Turner, Negro, 4448 Greer avenue, was released after treatment at Homer G. Phillips Hospital for effects of smoke inhalation. Firemen said the blaze was caused by defective wiring and was confined to the third floor and roof. Damage was estimated at $3900. Two alarms were sounded.

ARTHUR SCHMID, EX-COUNTY JUDGE, KILLS HIMSELF

Found by Wife at Home in Florida — Leader in G.O.P. Politics for Many Years.

Arthur W. Schmid, former judge of the old St. Louis County Court and for many years a leading figure in Republican politics in the county, shot and killed himself yesterday at his home at Pompano Beach, Fla., it was learned here today. He was 71 years old.

Schmid, who had been in ill health for some time, was found by his wife, Dorothy, when she returned from visiting neighbors. He was seated in a chair in the yard of their home near the beach, and a .38 caliber Colt revolver was on the ground where it had apparently dropped from his right hand, officials said.

MINNESOTA G.O.P. TO SEEK '56 RACE BY EISENHOWER

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16 (AP)—The Minnesota Republican Executive Committee said yesterday it will try this fall to induce President Eisenhower to run for re-election. The committee adopted a plan aimed at getting 108,000 names on a petition urging Mr. Eisenhower to run and, as a by-product, placing his name on the state presidential primary ballot. P. Kenneth Peterson, former state Republican chairman, said the goal is to match the 108,000 write-in votes cast for Mr. Eisenhower in the 1953 state presidential primary election. Shortly after that vote, Mr. Eisenhower issued a statement in Paris saying he could not ignore the big write-in ballot in Minnesota and announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for President. "Part of the new plan is to have Senator Thye of Minnesota and other state Republican leaders lead a caravan to Washington urging Mr. Eisenhower to make the race."

SEVENTH GENEVA SESSION FAILS TO SHOW PROGRESS

U.S. and Red Chinese Envoys Meet 2 1/2 Hours Without Agreeing on 41 Civilians.

GENEVA, Aug. 16 (AP)—United States and Communist Chinese ambassadors met for nearly two and a half hours today and then recessed their talks until Thursday. They gave no indication of any progress toward the release of 41 Americans held by Peiping.

At the end of their session behind closed doors, the negotiators said only that they would again take up the issue of civilians repatriation at their next session.

The meeting was the seventh, and one of the longest, between U. Alexis Johnson, United States Ambassador to Czechoslovakia, and Wang Ping-nan, Red China's envoy to Poland.

It was interrupted by an eight-minute recess, while Wang and his aids left the conference room and conferred privately in a separate office.

A member of the Chinese delegation, asked afterward whether the talks were making any progress, shrugged his shoulders and said smilingly, "it is continuing."

The talks have been snagged on Peiping's claim for return of Chinese students in the United States and a demand that a third power, India, be allowed to screen them to determine whether they wish to go back to China.

At the outset of negotiations Aug. 1, Peiping claimed authority over all 117,000 Chinese in the United States who have not become American citizens. Wang reportedly has since retreated from this demand for a list of all Chinese residents, which United States negotiators regarded as largely a bargaining maneuver.

The United States contends that all Chinese in the United States have been free to leave the country since last April.

The dispute over civilian repatriation was the first of two points to be taken up in the talks here. If the envoys can agree on that issue, they are to move on to a second item, a catch-all under the heading "practical matters at issue."

HOUSE WILL HOLD HEARINGS IN WEST ON MINING STOCKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—A House Commerce subcommittee will hold hearings in Denver and Salt Lake City on promotional securities, particularly stock issues in uranium and other mining ventures.

Chairman Klein (Dem., New York), said yesterday the Denver hearings would be held in the post office building Sept. 8 and 9. Those at Salt Lake City would be held in the post office building Sept. 13 and 14.

The purpose of the hearings, Klein said in a statement, is to obtain the views of state regulatory commissions, promoters, underwriters, broker-dealers and investors as to the need of amending the federal securities act with respect to the financing of promotional securities.

The question of providing more protection to investors in such securities will receive close attention, he said.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS DAMAGE SMALL CHURCH IN AUSTRIA

LINA, Austria, Aug. 16 (AP)—Police reported yesterday that Russian soldiers partly wrecked a small church near Urfahr in the Soviet zone Sunday. The soldiers broke windows, upset statues, and defaced the interior. They were arrested by Soviet military police, Austrian authorities said.

PRAVDA BLAMES INSANITATION FOR WAVE OF SICKNESS

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 16 — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda has hinted that the populations of several of Russia's fastest-growing industrial centers are being plagued by intestinal disorders because of a breakdown of sanitation. The Moscow paper said the Russian Red Cross had been enlisted to help remedy the situation. Pravda reported "sanitary-epidemiological stations" have been successful in combatting "stomach-intestinal and other diseases" in several southern "republics" but were less successful in a number of big cities.

"In far too many places sanitary culture is not on the proper level," the paper noted. "Instances of violation of elementary sanitary principles are frequent in Novosibirsk, Omsk, Kuibyshev, Saratov, Odessa, Smolensk and several other cities."

uary," he said. "I believe the figure could be cut in half." Matthews, pointing out that $3,200,000 of the amount proposed for parks and playgrounds was for acquisition of sites, said the county has been offered a 1600-acre tract of land in its western section for development as a park. This, together with existing parks and those already planned, would give the county sufficient park area, he said.

"The subcommittee on parks was not talking in terms of development of large tracts of land," replied Paul Taub, a member of the screening committee. "Our concern was for small neighborhood parks, so mama can take junior out for a sunning."

"We want to prevent the county from becoming a rabbit hutch. We want to provide air and trees in the residential sections. We feel that, even though the smaller issue failed a year and a half ago, this larger one will carry because the people now recognize the need."

Agrees on Need.
Councilman Maurice Abramson (Dem.), Third District, said he was pleased to hear the committee was recommending small neighborhood parks and playgrounds because they are "badly needed," but he added he was forced to agree with Matthews that $6,800,000 was "too high."

There was little discussion of other projects proposed by the screening committee. The $8,500,000 proposal to pay the county's share of the cost of acquiring rights-of-way for the Daniel Boone, Ozark and Mark Twain Expressways and an outerbelt expressway and the $800,000 recommendation for construction of a children's welfare center and detention home were not discussed at all because they already are scheduled for submission to the voters.

There was some discussion of, but no apparent controversy over, the proposal for issuance of $7,870,710 for supplementary roads, bridges and grade crossings. These funds would be used for widening and rehabilitation of major arteries and construction of new roads to relieve traffic congestion in the more heavily populated eastern section of the county.

Innerbelt Highway Fund.
Funds for purchase of the right-of-way for the proposed innerbelt highway extend north and south a distance of 18.05 miles would be provided in another proposal for issuance of $9,000,000 in bonds.

It is proposed to obtain the right-of-way for the entire length of the highway but construct only the central portion of it at this time. Funds for construction of this central portion, from Page avenue south to Eager road, would be provided in another $8,100,000 item.

Other recommended projects in the bond issue program are:

$600,000 for purchase of additional voting machines; $100,000 for establishment of a civil defense center; $1,500,000 for use with previously voted funds in construction of a 150-bed institution for chronic patients and a ward for observation of mentally ill persons; $1,300,000 for a secondary airport.

it could bring a citation of contempt.

In an address last night to an anti-Communist organization, The Alliance, Inc., Walter said preliminary investigation by his committee and examination of witnesses under oath has shown "Communist cells in the United States Senate, the War Labor Board and the National Labor Relations Board."

He explained, however, that by "the United States Senate" he meant staff employees of the Senate and not Senators.

The Alliance, Inc., describes its function as research work on subversive activities in schools, colleges, churches and government and supplying documented information and witnesses to congressional committees.

The meeting was opened by Archibald B. Roosevelt, the group's president, who asked "Is Senator Joe McCarthy out of business?"

"No!" roared the audience.

In his speech, Walter said:

"In executive session held by the committee, we heard witnesses testify under oath that there was a Communist cell in the United States Senate. Another witness swore of Communist cells and infiltration in the War Labor Board and the National Labor Relations Board."

Walter said today he would not comment on whether the Communist cells exist now.

The War Labor Board went out of operation in January, 1946. There was no immediate response from Senate officials or the NLRB.

Pledges Full Inquiry.

Walter said his investigation of Red infiltration in the Government will go "into every nook and cranny, regardless of time." The inquiry will be as thorough as the committee can make it, he said.

"We are going to hold hearings and let the chips fall where they may."

He added that the information collected so far by his committee is "beyond the imagination of anyone."

At the committee's open hearings yesterday most witnesses complained the questions asked invaded their privacy and threatened the constitutional right of free association. One of these was Phil Leeds, 39 years old, who played in the recent stage hit, "Can Can," and on several TV shows. He declared:

"The committee is intruding upon my privacy as an American citizen. In America you can believe in anything. You can believe in Yogi Berra or that Lanolin will save the world."

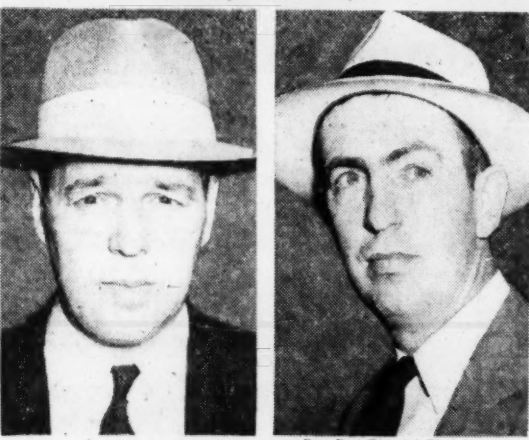

At the end of the day, Walter commented:

"I am sure that these people have demonstrated that there is something to be concealed in the framework of the (theatrical) unions.

"The United Press today quoted Walter as saying he was 'sure' that 'some of the witnesses have been pressured by the Communist party not to give us any information in their testimony.' Walter said he had been hopeful that some of the witnesses would be co-operative but 'now I can't say.'"

"I have heard a story that one of the witnesses, now appearing in a Broadway production, is visited backstage every night by Communist party members, urging him not to testify," Walter said. "But I can't say any more than that."

Unions repeatedly mentioned during the hearing were Actors Equity and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Five witnesses cited the Fifth Amendment, which protects a citizen from self-incrimination. Two who simply based their refusal on an alleged lack of authority on the part of the committee were Polan and George Tyne.

Tyne, who recently appeared in the stage show "Lunatics and Lovers," challenged the committee, saying it had "no right to invade my inner beliefs, my conscience and my associations."

"I think the purpose of this committee is to throw fear into the theater," declared another actor, Martin Wolfson, 51, a veteran Broadway performer.

"This is an attack on the theater," said Stanley Prager, 38, a comedian now appearing in the musical hit, "The Pajama Game." He continued, "I believe that what I think and say and with whom I associate is not this committee's concern."

Actor John Randolph, when asked if he were now a Communist, replied: "I would love to give you that answer. I just don't think you have the right to ask that."

Randolph's wife, Sarah Cunningham, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked about possible Communist associations or her knowledge of Communists in actors' unions.

For the remainder of its hearings, scheduled to run until Friday, the committee had 20 more show people under subpoena.

TRUMAN WILL RUN IN 1956
AND WIN, GOV. FOLSON SAYS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 16 (AP)—Gov. James E. Folsom, one of the few who predicted Harry Truman's election in 1948, is forecasting a Democratic victory again in 1956 with the former President once more at the head of the ticket.

Folsom has made the prediction several times in recent weeks. He repeated it at his news conference this morning.

"I just figure Mr. Truman is a candidate," the Governor explained, "and if he's a candidate, he'll be nominated, and if he's nominated, he'll be elected."

Folsom did not elaborate except to say, "If I was a candidate for any office I'd be doing just what Mr. Truman is doing. I just think he'll be elected, that's all."

four lanes on each side of the parkway. Forest Park avenue is part of a proposed traffic relief route which eventually will extend from Market and Compton avenues, through Forest Park and along the Rock Island right-of-way to Skinner boulevard.

Widening of West Florissant avenue between Birch and Riverview boulevards, a distance of about two miles, at an estimated cost of $170,000. The work will include grading and replacement of curbs.

Repairing of Riverview drive from Scranton avenue to the Chain of Rocks bridge at an estimated cost of $26,500.

The contract let under the 1944 bond issue was for construction of Fire Station No. 31 at the northeast corner of Morganford and Haven street.

WOMAN RESCUED
AFTER FLOATING
OFF AS BOAT SINKS

Mrs. Stanley Brzostowski, 503 North Twenty-eighth street, East St. Louis, was carried a mile by currents in Kentucky Lake following a boating accident, before she was rescued by friends after an hour's search. The lake is near Murray, Ky., 200 miles southeast of St. Louis.

Mrs. Brzostowski was in a motorboat with East St. Louis Fire Commissioner Edgar Lehman and Judy Vogt, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Violet Ford, 1240 Bliss drive, Bellefontaine Neighbors. They were part of a group of Lehman's friends and neighbors on outing last Saturday at the lake.

The boat struck an underwater stump and sank almost immediately. Lehman clung to the bow of the sunken craft while the Vogt girl swam ashore, but Mrs. Brzostowski was carried away by the current. All three had grabbed pillow-like life preservers before the boat sank.

Persons who witnessed the accident from the shore notified the Lehman's party. Mr. and Mrs. Malburn Schwartz, 4100A State street, East St. Louis, obtained a motorboat and began a search for Mrs. Brzostowski, locating her a mile from the accident scene an hour later. Lehman was rescued by Brzostowski.

ADMITS AGREEING TO ACCEPT BRIBE

Texas Ex-Land Commissioner Pleads Guilty but Denies Getting $35,000.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 16 (AP)—Former Texas Land Commissioner Bascom Giles today pleaded guilty to two counts that he had agreed to accept a bribe, but he said he was innocent of a third count, of actually receiving a $35,000 bribe. The state waived prosecution of this third count and Giles was expected to be sentenced later today.

He already is under a three-year sentence for abetting theft in another case involving the state's $100,000,000 veterans' land program which he formerly administered.

Giles is under numerous indictments in connection with alleged fraudulent sales under the land program. He has been free on bond and his prison sentence is on appeal. The indictments in today's case charged that Giles accepted a bribe from C. V. Wynn and Arthur McKenzie, San Antonio land promoters, in exchange for helping them make a profit on a deal involving a 663-acre ranch sold to 22 veterans.

U.S. MEDIATORS ENTER
STRIKE AGAINST K. OF C.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 16 (UP)—Federal conciliators today stepped into the strike of office workers at the national headquarters of the Knights of Columbus, and both sides promised to discuss a reopening of negotiations.

Walter Maggilo of the federal conciliation service was scheduled to meet late in the day at Philadelphia, Pa., with Luke E. Hart, St. Louis, attorney and Supreme Knight of the Catholic men's group. The K. of C. is holding a convention in Philadelphia. Maggilo said a union representative would be on hand to discuss possible future contract talks.

The new development came as a spokesman for Archbishop Henry J. O'Brien of the Hartford archdiocese said the church in Connecticut was being subjected to "serious embarrassment" because of the walkout which started last weekend. He urged that the issues be arbitrated.

POWER INQUIRY TO OPEN AUG. 30 AT SPRINGFIELD

House Unit Investigating Administration Hostility to Co-operatives.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—A House subcommittee which has been checking on Administration policies regarded as hostile to the interests of low-cost public power co-operatives and municipal electric systems will open a full-scale investigation of the Southwest Power Administration at Springfield, Mo., Aug. 30.

The Springfield hearings will be the first of a series to be conducted in the field by the subcommittee headed by Representative Earl Cuddeback (Dem., Pennsylvania).

Of primary concern to the subcommittee is the alleged failure of the Department of Interior Under Secretary Douglas McKay to carry out the provisions of federal law which require the department to make available the preference customers, such as co-operatives and municipally-operated systems, the power generated at federally-operated plants.

Funds Refused.
Republican-dominated Congresses have refused to supply funds for transmission costs to carry the federal power to preference customers. The subcommittee in earlier hearings has been told that the federal power is getting into the hands of private utilities.

Witnesses to be heard at Springfield will be representatives of co-operatives and municipal systems in Missouri, Arkansas

RESTORING OLD COURTHOUSE MURALS TO TAKE MONTHS

Restoration and reconstruction of paintings in the dome and lunette of the Old Courthouse will take at least until the end of the year, Walter Nitkiewicz, museum preservation specialist of the National Park Service, said today.

Work was begun by Nitkiewicz in mid-April. He and his staff of eight art students from Washington University are cleaning and touching up the aged murals in the courthouse and, in some cases, making reproductions of the works of Charles Wimar and Ettore Miragoli.

Nitkiewicz and his staff work on an intricate set of scaffolds rising 145 feet. Flaking paint is being retouched where possible. Several designs linking the eight murals have been discovered beneath a coating of ordinary house paint, and they are being restored.

and Oklahoma Democratic members of the subcommittee charge that Administration policy has compelled the co-operatives in many instances to integrate with private utility systems, and this has resulted in higher rates for consumers and eventually will lead to the destruction of the low-cost public power systems.

From Springfield, the subcommittee will go to Atlanta for hearings on the operation of the Southeast Power Administration, thence to Denver and Idaho Falls, Idaho. In all of these areas, there have been complaints that Administration policy is forcing co-operatives and municipalities into "partnerships" with private utilities which deprive them of the federally generated power to which they are entitled.

Lobbyist Writes Rules.
A major undertaking of the subcommittee will be an investigation at San Francisco into the circumstances under which a set of regulations suggested to the Department of the Interior by Herman Kruse, lobbyist for the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., was issued almost verbatim as official Government regulations.

Under the lobbyist-sponsored regulations private utilities were relieved of the obligation imposed on them by Democratic administrations to carry to preferred customers a limited amount of federally generated power in return for the right to construct their own transmission lines on Government-owned land. Kruse will be summoned to testify at the San Francisco hearings.

DULLES CRITICAL OF COMMISSION ON KOREAN TRUCE

Says Curbing or Removing it Would Be Desirable—Doubtful of Unification Chances.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission in Korea may be serving an evil purpose.

He said removal of the commission or restriction of its activities would be desirable.

Dulles also told a press conference that he has seen no evidence from the Communists that progress can be made now toward unification of Korea. In the recent Communist calls for a conference on Korea he said the Communists have not indicated they are ready to accept United Nations-supervised elections to unify the country. He said no progress toward unification can be made without that.

The Secretary was asked whether anything could be done about changing the supervisory commission, and Dulles' lawyer said he believed a doctrine which the courts apply to contracts which have been frustrated should be applied. He called it the doctrine of frustration but said wryly it is difficult to apply in international affairs.

SOUTH KOREANS BALK AT TALKS

TOKYO, Aug. 16 (AP)—Demands by Red Chinese and North Korean leaders for a Far East conference to unify Korea met opposition in South Korea today.

A government spokesman in Seoul denounced them as "nothing but the usual Communist trick to gain more time for another armed aggression." He added, "We never believe in any talks with the Communists and we refuse to talk to them."

The United Press quoted a government statement as saying, "Let the Chinese Reds get out of North Korea and the North Korean Communists lay down their arms." Then the people of the north can join with the people of the south in speaking freely, and we shall have peace and unification immediately without the loss of a single life."

Conference Urged.
Red China's Premier Chou En-lai and commander-in-chief Chu Teh both called for a conference, provided for in the Korean armistice, to work out settlement of the differences which have kept the country divided into rival north and south regimes since 1945.

North Korea's Premier Marshal Kim Il Sung went further and suggested a mutual north-south undertaking not to use force and "speedy convening" of a north-south conference to "discuss the question of Korea's unification."

The Peiping radio, heard here, carried all three speeches, made on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan.

All three speakers recalled that the 1954 Geneva conference, which reached armistice agreement on the Indochina war, also was supposed to deal with Korea's future under the 1953 armistice but failed to do so.

Chinese Support.
Chu Teh, speaking at a rally in Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, said Communist China was in "complete agreement" with the "positive proposals" put forward by Kim and that the "Chinese people will do their utmost to support them."

"We consider it highly necessary to hold a Far Eastern conference . . . to discuss the question of unifying Korea by peaceful means," he declared.

Chu scored efforts of President Syngman Rhee of South Korea to get the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission truce teams out of the country and said bluntly: "No attempt to wreck the commission will be tolerated."

Rhee contends the Czech and Polish members who serve on the truce teams with Swiss and Swedes are spies. After eight days of violence in which 44 American soldiers and 100 Koreans were injured, demonstrations tapered off only yesterday in five South Korean cities where the truce teams are stationed.

Holds U.S. Responsible.
Chou En-lai, speaking at a reception in Peiping, likewise called for a Far East conference in Korea, upheld the truce teams, and said "the United States . . . especially has an inescapable responsibility" to defend the truce teams against South Korean attack.

Chou revived the standing Red Chinese proposal that all foreign troops leave Korea. He charged that just when "world tension has been eased to a certain extent" Rhee's government had demanded withdrawal of the truce teams and "openly expressed" its intention to seize the city of Kaesong and the Ongjin peninsula.

Marshal Kim, who customarily refers to the South Korean government as the "Rhee gangsters," adopted an unusually mild tone.

He proposed reducing armies in both north and south "to the minimum" and spending the money and using the manpower thus freed for "peaceful construction." Then he called for "efforts to arrange the speedy convening of a conference of representatives of the South and North Korean governments to discuss the question of Korea's unification."

In a bristling speech only the day before, President Rhee had told a Seoul audience that conferences with Communists merely gave them time to consolidate gains and plan new aggression.

By the United Press.
In Seoul, United States Far East Commander Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer conferred today with South Korean officials amid indications that the government-inspired demonstrations against Communist truce inspectors had petered out.

TITO WATCHES ARMY GAMES

BELGRADE, Aug. 16 (AP)—Yugoslav President Josip Tito Broz watched his army maneuver with live ammunition yesterday in the Lubljana gap, classic invasion route to the north Italian plain.

Radio Belgrade reported the maneuver lasted four hours, and that the Yugoslav air force participated.

INQUIRY IN ASSERTED FIRING AS RISK BECAUSE OF PARENTS
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee is planning to investigate the case of a Rhode Island navy veteran who says he was fired from a civilian navy job as a security risk because of his parents.
Senator Green (Dem.), Rhode Island, has written Joseph H. Summers Jr., of Providence, that the inquiry has been scheduled by the Senate Civil Service subcommittee on government employees' securities.
Summers, employed as a metallurgist at the Quonset Naval Air Station at Quonset Point, R. I., said he was told that he was a security risk. He said he was informed that the action was taken because his parents were members of an organization listed by the Attorney General as subversive. Both his parents have denied that they belong to any proscribed organization.

U.S. Tells How to Produce High Purity Uranium Metal

Technique Described at Geneva So Any Nation Can Make the Atomic Material.

By FRANK CAREY
GENEVA, Aug. 16 (AP)—The United States told the world in detail today how to make high purity uranium metal—a basic material for atomic energy production—on a large scale and at low cost.
The operational technique was described at the 72-nation atomic-for-peace conference by Dr. H. A. Wilhelm of the United States Atomic Energy Commission's contract laboratory at Iowa State College.
He said the description was intended to be detailed enough to allow uranium metal producers in any country of the world to duplicate the process.
Mixed With Magnesium.
Wilhelm said the process involved mixing uranium compound—uranium tetrafluoride—with magnesium metal and placing the mixture in a furnace to initiate a "reduction" reaction leading to the production of uranium metal itself.
Uranium metal, as distinguished from raw uranium ore, is the basic material of atomic energy production for both peaceful and military uses.
Wilhelm hinted that the method he described played the key role in the wartime production of the metal for the atomic bomb.

In another report to the conference, three Russian scientists described a method of determining simultaneously the content of uranium, thorium and radium in ores and rocks. The procedure was described as a possible aid to prospectors and processors.
As described by researcher G. R. Golbek, the method involves a kind of step-by-step measurement of two kinds of radiation given off by rocks containing the three elements. The thorium and radium content is differentiated first and then the uranium determined.
Photosynthesis Study.
Another American scientist, Dr. M. Calvin of the University of California at Berkeley, reported a major advance toward solving and duplicating the process of photosynthesis—nature's method of supplying food to the world.
Calvin said he and his associates had identified all the steps in one of two stages by which green plants under sunlight convert water and carbon dioxide into foodstuffs. He said they had detected every stage of the process by which carbon dioxide is "reduced" to form carbohydrates—sugars and starches.
Soviet scientists told the conference last week they believe

EISENHOWER HOPEFUL OF ANOTHER CONFERENCE ON ATOMS FOR PEACE

GENEVA, Aug. 16 (UP).
THE United States announced today that President Eisenhower wants another atoms-for-peace conference to carry on "the great beginning" in international atomic co-operation.
Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said the President had authorized him to express the United States' hope that the work begun here will continue.
"I've just received a message from him (Mr. Eisenhower) authorizing me to state that it is his hope that a second conference will be convened at a later date."
Strauss told the American Club of Geneva in a luncheon talk.

they are on the verge of solving the mystery of photosynthesis. The Russians said they have used radioactive isotopes as tracers in plant studies and have learned a number of things about the process.
Calvin said the process remaining to be solved is how solar energy is absorbed by chlorophyll or how the green pigment of plants is used to "split" molecules of water to supply hydrogen needed to "reduce" carbon dioxide.
"Batteries" Theory.
He said a new theory regarding that process was that a kind of "battery" exists within plants. Scientists theorize this battery is made of layers of chlorophyll between microscopically thin layers of fat and protein, he said, and this absorbs sunlight and uses it to split the water.
Scientists have long sought the secret of photosynthesis in the hope of duplicating it artificially to increase the world's food supply.
Atomic "shots" given to calves may eventually provide farmers a method for selecting animals best suited to tolerate unfavorable local climates, the conference was told in another paper.
Two University of Missouri scientists described a method, using radioactive iodine, which they said offered possibilities for predicting the effect of rising temperature on the milk production and growth of cattle.
The report was by Dr. Clifton Blincoe and Dr. Samuel Brody.
Explaining that hot weather depresses the production of milk and meat—and that activity of the thyroid gland is also lowered by the effects of rising temperature—the researchers said injection of radioactive iodine into calves thus offers a means of determining their present thyroid activity and how it might be expected to be affected later. Iodine, which naturally concentrates in the thyroid gland, can be employed in its radioactive form to measure activity of the gland.

Therefore, they said, a farmer might be able to select potentially productive calves without the expense of raising both good and bad animals.
INQUIRY INTO STUDENT'S TALE HE WALKED IN SECRET CENTER
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Air Force said yesterday an investigation is underway of the story told by an Oklahoma college student that he walked through the secret missile test center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., without being challenged.

Johnny Willis Dukeminier, a student at Central State College, Edmond, Okla., wrote President Eisenhower, the FBI and the Air Force last week that he had taken the stroll to demonstrate "the complete lack of security."
The Air Force here said an investigation is being conducted at the test center, and that if any disciplinary action is taken against security officers it will be announced at the center.

ACCUSED SOLDIER ADMITS HE WAS HATED BY P.O.W.'S

Sergeant Charged With Murder Says 'Worst Guy' Reputation was Based on Rumors.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (UP)—Sgt. James C. Gallagher, accused of murdering fellow American prisoners of war in Korea and collaborating with his captors, admitted at his court-martial today that he was considered the "worst guy" in the prison camp.

The 23-year-old Brooklyn soldier, on the witness stand for the second day, said however, that the opinion of his fellow prisoners was based purely on rumors they had heard about him. The rumors, he added, were not true.

"I know when I walked down toward another squad, they said 'you better keep quiet, here comes Gallagher,'" the defendant said in reply to a question by the court on how well he was liked by his fellow prisoners.

Completes Two-Day Appearance.

Gallagher completed his two-day appearance on the witness stand shortly after the afternoon session began. He had testified three hours and 45 minutes.

Before he left the stand he admitted that he had sided with the Communists in their assertion that there was racial discrimination in the United States. When the prosecution asked if he did not consider that the "Communist propaganda line" at that time, Gallagher said he did not, that he still believed racial discrimination existed in the United States and that he still was against it.

When Gallagher completed his testimony the defense called as a witness, Lindsey Lee Slaten, of Texarkana, Ark., a fellow prisoner in North Korea in 1951.

'Kill or Cure' Treatment.

Slaten testified that when he objected to going to "Chinese doctors for a 'kill or cure' treatment of a boil, Gallagher "hit me and kicked me down hill."

He said a friend then helped him to the prison camp hospital and he admitted that when he got there a Communist doctor treated his ailment.

Gallagher, nervously tapping his foot on the floor and with his arms folded, time and again denied that he threw Cpl. Donald Thomas Baxter from prison camp shelter to his death in the sub-zero cold or that he was responsible for the death of Cpl. John William Jones or that of a third man known only as Dunn.

He said earlier that he had cursed Sgt. Lloyd W. Pate, of Augusta, Ga., a fellow prisoner from 1951 to 1953, who accused him of murdering one of the soldiers.

Gallagher said that in March 1952, Pate came up to him and accused him of murdering Jones. "What did you tell him?" Major James J. Jenkins, prosecution attorney asked.

"I told him to mind his own goddam business," Gallagher replied, heatedly.

He had testified previously that he had placed Jones outside of the prison shelter he shared with him, but only because the Detroit soldier refused to "keep himself clean." He said he later brought Jones back into the shelter.

Gallagher continued to deny all the charges against him, although he admitted that he signed a petition in 1952, which was broadcast to United Nations front line troops appealing to them to lay down their arms and go home. That charge against him was dropped Friday on motion of his counsel who contended that the prosecution had failed to produce sufficient evidence.

In his testimony regarding Pate, Jenkins asked him if there was any reason Pate should lie and say that Gallagher had informed on another prisoner.

"Not that I know of," Gallagher said. "I know the man dislikes me."

Jenkins questioned him again about a 124-page statement Gallagher had made to an Army investigator April 8. He asked him if that statement he did not say that from the time he was taken prisoner in November 1950 until October 1951 it was a case of "dog eat dog, everybody's out for themselves." Gallagher confirmed this statement.

Jenkins asked him if that same situation still prevailed at the time he allegedly threw Cpl. Jones and Baxter out of their shelters.

"Yes, sir," Gallagher replied, "but what I meant was there were groups or cliques of two or three who stuck together and who knew each other on the line or were from the same home town. They stuck together and said to hell with everybody else. I wouldn't say everybody was out to cut each other's throats as you imply."

Reaction of Men.

Jenkins asked the defendant the "general feeling" of the men in camp about the Jones's death.

"They disliked me," Gallagher replied.

"How do you feel about Jones's death?" Jenkins asked.

"I do not feel guilty," Gallagher replied. "I've often wondered if I'd left that man in the room if he'd have lived. I believe that with all the men dying in that room, he would have died anyway."

Diego Rivera Married Again.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16 (UP)—Artist Diego Rivera was married secretly a week ago to Mexican painter Emma Hurtado, his fourth wife, it was disclosed today.

He told newspaper men he planned to go to Russia soon for a cancer operation "because only a Russian surgeon can cure me."

ALSO French Bask in New Mood Of Nerveless Complacency And Faure Won't Upset Them

Premier a Clever Politician, Likely to Survive if He Can Handle Trouble in North Africa Without Bringing About Crisis.

By STEWART ALSOP

THE FRENCH PEOPLE do not wish to be troubled or upset. They wish only to be entertained and kept interested. That is the present mood of France, and M. Faure understands the mood very well. That is why, bar the worst kind of crisis in North Africa, his government should last through to the elections in the spring.

The speaker was a high official in the government of Prime Minister Edgar Faure, who is probably France's cleverest politician. The Faure government has no intention of upsetting the French people, if it can possibly help it. As a result, most observers here agree that the Faure government has a better chance of survival than any French government in a long time—if only the trouble in North Africa can somehow be dealt with.

Except for North Africa, all the passion of French politics has suddenly been spent. When this reporter was last in France two years ago, France was engulfed in a great wave of strikes, and two tremendous issues—the war in Indochina and the rearmament of Germany—were troubling and upsetting the French people.

Now France is calmly prosperous. Production stands at 176 per cent of prewar. In the last year wages have increased by 8 per cent, while living costs have held steady. In contrast to England, there is no monetary crisis. All in all, although basic dislocations in the French economy still exist, France is better off now than the most dreamily optimistic Marshall aid planners dared hope a few short years ago.

Now the tremendous issues of two years ago no longer even interest France. As for Indochina, that unfortunate country has simply ceased to exist in French eyes. The French have total abandonment began at Dien Bien Phu, continued at Geneva, and was completed this spring, when the United States insisted on backing the violently anti-French Premier Diem.

French troops are being withdrawn at the rate of 10,000 a month, and by January next there will be left hardly more than a corporal's guard. From top to bottom, the French have written off Indochina as already lost.

The French do not want to

U.S. to Set Up 50 More Radar Posts in Arctic

3000 Troops Pushing Toward Far North With Building Supplies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (UP)

THE Army announced today that 3000 troops are pushing toward the Arctic frontier with enough building material to construct more than 50 radar stations and other sites on the continent's air raid warning net.

The announcement, giving the first indication of the number of locations planned for the distant early warning line, said the specially trained troops would unload more than 200,000 tons of construction material and supplies along the largely unexplored high Arctic coast line.

The DEW line is a joint United States-Canadian venture, being financed by this country, designed to provide four to six hours' warning of approaching enemy bomber attacks along the polar approaches to North America.

Stations Operating. Seven radar stations already are operating in the American segment of the line along the northern coast of Alaska. Others are functioning in Greenland at the opposite end of the net which is about 3000 miles long.

Work now is beginning to fill in the large gap across the top of Canada.

The Army said it has two task forces in the shipping operation, which must be completed by late September before polar ice makes further navigation impossible.

One force left Seattle last month and soon will pass Point Barrow, Alaska, headed toward Canada's central Arctic areas. The other force, broken into two groups, is operating along the coast of Baffin island and northeastern Canada, having sailed from Norfolk, Va.

The Navy, in a recent announcement, described the northern movement as the largest Arctic operation ever staged. The operation involves 117 ships carrying supplies for the DEW line as well as Alaska and Greenland air bases.

Building Supplies. The Army forces have the task of moving the building material and supplies onto the Arctic shores under conditions ranging from muddy tidal flats to rockbound cliffs. They will use a variety of landing craft including the new 60-ton amphibious "BARC."

The Army said it is using 37,000 tons of cranes, bulldozers, fork lift trucks, landing craft and special cargo handling equipment.

The troops were drawn from the transportation corps, engineers, quartermaster and chemical corps. During daylight hours in the Arctic summer, temperatures will average about 30 degrees and men will be exposed to icebergs, pack ice, fogs and possibly Arctic storms.

New Seventh Fleet Flagship. TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 16 (AP)—The heavy cruiser, St. Paul, recently arrived from its home port of Long Beach, Calif., today became the flagship of the United States Seventh Fleet. The El Dorado, fleet flagship since early May, is returning to the United States.

British Guard Armories, Fear Outbreak by Irish Terrorists

DANNY RYAN, Belfast carpenter, addressing Irish Republican party recruiting rally in London Sunday. Party seeks to abolish British sovereignty in North Ireland and advocates a united Ireland.

By HAL COOPER

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP). THE BRITISH WAR OFFICE clamped a tight guard on its armories today amid fears that fresh activity by Irish terrorists may lead to guerrilla warfare in disputed North Ireland.

After a special cabinet meeting called last night by Prime Minister Eden, the war office announced it was taking "special precautions" against further raids on arms depots.

Scotland Yard detectives today raided a vacant shop in London's shabby second hand market area and seized a large quantity of guns and ammunition.

Police seized two men in an ammunition laden station wagon today near Hainault forest, Essex. Police found dozens of rounds of ammunition stacked on the back seat. The two men held for questioning were said to speak with Irish accent.

The avowed aim of the I.R.A., which is barred in the Irish Republic as well as the United Kingdom, is to unite the six Ulster counties of northern Ireland with the 26 counties of the Republic.

The News Chronicle and Daily Mirror said the I.R.A. has a definite timetable for an invasion of Ulster. The News Chronicle said part of the plot would be to seize the Dublin broadcasting station and appeal for an Ireland-wide uprising against British rule.

The Rathfriland raid was followed by abortive attempts by two small groups of Irishmen to

Price Warns Russia May Pass U.S. in Atoms-for-Peace Race

East Side Congressman, at Geneva Parley, Says America Will Lose Supremacy if It Slackens Effort.

By JAMES DEAKIN

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. RUSSIA will take the lead in developing atomic energy for peacetime use if there is "the slightest slackening of effort" by the United States, Representative Melvin Price (Dem.), East St. Louis, declared today.

It will require "all the resources, all the ingenuity and all the boldness at our command" to maintain supremacy in this field, he added.

Price, a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, is in Geneva attending the world conference on peaceful use of the atom. In his second report from the conference issued at his office here, he said:

"On the basis of the conference sessions which I have attended, and on the basis of many conversations I have held with ranking scientists from many nations, I have reached the conclusion that we are now ahead of the Soviets in developing the peaceful atom, but that we will have to do our utmost if we are to stay ahead."

"I further believe that the slightest slackening of efforts on our part will result in the Soviets wresting leadership in the peacetime atomic field away from us."

Price said he was "particularly impressed" by reports from certain "free world" scientists who attended a peacetime atomic conference in Moscow last month. He did not identify the scientists.

"These men—who are sober and cautious in their judgments—came back deeply impressed with the caliber of the Soviet atomic scientists and the excellence of Soviet research laboratories and machines," Price said.

"They of course knew before they went to Moscow that the Soviets had assigned top priority to the development of atomic energy, and they expected to find a Soviet program which was good. What surprised them, however, is how very good it was."

"As one of these observers put it: 'Make no mistake about it—the Russians are going places in a hurry.'"

Price said this might "shock many Americans—but it should not."

"The Soviets, after all, broke our monopoly on the atomic bomb years before we expected them to," he went on. "In the same manner, they achieved a

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, 78-year-old German financier tried as a war criminal and acquitted, said yesterday he was not interested in politics or "taking part in public life."

PEARSON
Skillful Lobby Wines, Dines
FPC and Gets What It Wants

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1955.)

SOME people were surprised when the Federal Power Commission waited two days until after Congress adjourned, then announced a decision to turn Hell's Canyon over to the Idaho Power Co. They shouldn't have been.

Anyone knowing the inside of the FPC and the lobbying forces that operate on its members shouldn't have been surprised at all.

Lobbyists get pretty much what they want in Washington today. They were even able to put across the Hell's Canyon award to Idaho Power, despite the fact that a House committee had already voted against it, despite the fact that the Senate Interior Committee was split 50-50, and despite the fact that an FPC examiner, William J. Costello, had recommended it would be more efficient to develop this vast natural reservoir on the snake river by the Federal Government than the piecemeal operation proposed by Idaho Power.

Behind the FPC has been operating one of the most skillful lobbies in Washington. It wines and dines the FPC commissioners, takes them on free junkets around the country, operates through local electric light and gas companies to influence congressmen, and spends around a half a million dollars each year lobbying with Congress. No other lobby in Washington—and there are a lot of them—spends so much money in Washington.

The FPC chairman, Jerome K. Kuykendall, a friendly, likeable man, who is far more chummy with the gas and electric lobbies than any previous chairman. Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington recommended Kuykendall to President Eisenhower. Since Langlie had helped defeat Senator Taft's southern delegates at the 1952 Chicago convention and seated Eisenhower delegates instead, President Eisenhower was obligated to Langlie. Langlie, in turn is obligated to his strong supporters, the Washington Water Power Co. and Pacific Power & Light.

When Kuykendall came to Washington he immediately came into the sphere of activity of the big power and gas lobby, prominent in which is Edward Falck, the registered lobbyist for Bridgeport Gas Light, Niagara Mohawk Power, Consolidated Edison, Commonwealth Natural Gas, Central Hudson Gas & Electric, Delaware Power & Light, Hartford Gas Co., Lynchburg Gas, the Long Island Lighting Co., New Haven Gas, New York State Electric & Gas Co., and Connecticut Light & Power.

Falck is an astute lobbyist. He

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Cheers for Clarissa

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your Clarissa Star is wonderful! How we at our house love her happy, breezy, down-to-earth column. She is so refreshing. Long may she write!

Having just returned from Michigan, our family delighted in her Aug. 9 column. We had stuffed on everything from smoked Japanese oysters to chicken, bacon and onions done up in foil and roasted in the hot sand of a beach (excellent, by the way) and really chuckled at her article on vacation eating.

We, too, have joined the Royal Order of Bluebloods by virtue of consuming 10 blueberry pies and four quarts of blueberries in three weeks. (This does not include the numerous pieces of blueberry pie devoured as dessert when eating out.)

We had blueberries over cereal; we had blueberries under cream; we had blueberries from the fields, with the dew still sparkling on their glistening fat berry bodies.

We ate them over ice cream, we ate them instead of peanuts or olives or potato chips. We ate them in muffins, pies, deep dishes, in the raw, even. We just ate blueberries! Blub, blub.

Last night's dessert was sliced peaches and I believe we all resented their glowing peachy mood. We were blue for blueberries, and then Clarissa's column. Such nostalgia she evoked for Michigan!

We also visited the "hotel with the longest porch in the world" but only to trend on the famous red carpet, step inside to say we had been there and to take some typical tourist's snaps of the elongated porch.

While on the island we also partook of many delightful dishes, tried the various fudges that so many of the small sweet shops featured. We tried fudge with rum, fudge with walnuts, fudge with blueberries, whoops, I mean coconut.

She had a glorious week there. We, a glorious day. She enjoyed eating, we too did our share of fork lifting for a day. But the most amusing thing of all was: I too added seven pounds!

Question

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In answer to the Aug. 17 letter signed "Essie H." inquiring whether men standing in the street drinking beer all afternoon while they clean and mess with their cars could be considered a community eyesore, I would like to ask: Would the writer be much happier if these men would drink buttermilk or ice tea?

CURIOUS.

Sore With Laughing

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

My hat is off to those skilled, patient trainers and keepers of our St. Louis Zoo. Remarkable for courage, patience and knowledge of the animal actors, they put on a free show worth many similes in any man's language.

Two small grandsons dragged me thither for the first time earlier this year. Two weeks later there was no dragging. I gladly sat there in my own steam to spend a few hours in utter relaxation with almost continuous laughs from my own down under where they really make the blood circulate and the heart sing.

I must confess: I lack the courage to spend half an hour in a cage full of lions, the patience to teach the elephants to wait, and whatever genius it takes to make the chimps so expert in their breath-taking antics. Strictly to myself and with never a word about my suspicions, I wondered if the chimps were not laughing at the spectators! It could be.

Coming home sore with laughing I said a silent thanks to those men who made such entertainment possible, and sotto voce (you will understand why) another thanks for the privilege of chipping in my earnings tax mite.

Six Generations of Sturdys

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I just want to thank you for printing the article on the old Sturdy farm in Crestwood. Oswald Sturdy was my great-grandfather which makes my grandchildren the sixth generation.

St. Louis county is so built up I didn't know just where the farm was. The last time I was there was in 1927 to attend a family reunion.

I have lived in Highland 38 years and have never been without the Post-Dispatch. Every evening as I sit down and read it thoroughly it is very interesting to see all the items about places that were so familiar to me.

Viewing Three Decisions

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Massachusetts, New York and California court decisions you approvingly use as the background of your editorial, "Gains for Liberty," which approved federal court decisions in cases involving Harry Bridges, Corliss Lamont and certain individuals who invoked the Fifth Amendment's protection against self-incrimination, struck "soft blows" at liberty instead of for it as you conclude. A rational deduction from these judicial opinions is that individuals and groups dedicated to the destruction of liberty are entitled to unrestrained freedom to achieve that end.

H. B. WINKLER.

So We May Stay Free

The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, headed by Senator Hennings of Missouri, has decided to go through the Bill of Rights section by section. This means that it will take up at the outset one of the most important—perhaps the most important—of our constitutional guarantees. The very first words of the First Amendment express it as follows:

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

Senator Hennings and his colleagues, Democratic Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota, assisted by the subcommittee counsel, Lon Hocker of St. Louis, can do the nation an outstanding service in this first part of their inquiry. And judging by the approach which they propose, the prospects for such a service are excellent.

To start with the subcommittee is informing itself on how "interested persons" interpret religious freedom and how they think the words of the Constitution should be applied in practice. They are asking for representative views in writing as background. They are also inviting testimony beginning Oct. 3 in Washington.

Mr. Hocker says flatly that the investigation "will be no Donnybrook between sects," since the subcommittee "will not permit attacks by representatives of one group upon another." But the inquiring Senators will make it their business to attempt to determine what legislative efforts are in keeping with the Constitution's guarantee of religious freedom—and what efforts are in conflict.

Such an inquiry is urgently needed, in our opinion, to the American people as a whole may be reminded of the importance of keeping religion out of politics in this country. For there is serious danger that this precious freedom may be eroded away little by little. One church group wants federal aid for church schools. Another group sets up sectarian training programs within the public school system. Still another wants some other favor from governmental authority whether at the local level or in Washington.

Freedom of religion means freedom of the individual to worship as he pleases. Obviously this freedom includes the right not to worship at all if that is the preference of the individual. It embraces the right to appeal to others but it does not include the license to force others to conform against their will. There is no state church in this country, as in so much of the strife-torn Old World, including South America, and if the American people are alert to their liberties there never will be a state church here.

Yet there are disturbing signs. Several thoughtful observers have written books on this subject in recent years, including Leo Pfeffer of the New York bar, whose "Church, State and Freedom" (Bacon Press) is a monumental assembly and evaluation of data and information. Some of the outstanding Supreme Court cases in the field are collected in the exceedingly valuable "Bill of Rights Reader" by Milton R. Konvitz (Cornell).

There is also William L. Cheney's sound as well as provocative new book, "Freedom of the Press" (Harcourt). Mr. Cheney, for many years the stimulating editor of Collier's magazine, writing out of his long experience in journalism, reminds us that the Founding Fathers were so attached to religious freedom that they quickly abolished colonial laws that made it illegal to be a Baptist in one state, a Roman Catholic in another and so on.

In no other nation have churches flourished as in the United States. That is because worship is free and no sect or denomination is linked to the state. And that is the way it should be, for the state that helps today can oppose tomorrow, as the Peron regime in Argentina has demonstrated.

Every citizen may wish the Senate civil liberties inquiry the fullest measure of success. It can be the means of strengthening the human rights that have made America "the land of the free" in the eyes of the world.

Those A's Count Noses

Although they are in sixth place in the American League, the Kansas City Athletics may now be said to be a big success. This is partly because the Athletics now have passed the million-mark in attendance—helped, of course, by advance ticket sales—but mostly because they are in sixth place, two notches higher than some experts believed they could go.

The Athletics already have surpassed the first year's attendance record of the Baltimore Browns (Orioles, that is). They have gone beyond the all-time marks of their predecessors, the Philadelphia Athletics and seem within easy reach of the Phillies' mark. And they are well beyond the record of Cincinnati in the enemy league.

In part this attendance mark can be attributed to Kansas City's well-known and natural-born enthusiasm for Kansas City, and in part to the fact that Lou Boudreau's Athletics enjoy now and then get up off the ground to bat down the Indians or Yankees or Sox when defeat is most embarrassing for the panting pennant contenders. Anyhow, everything's up in Kansas City.

Once the Fire Is Started

The French government's troubles in Morocco are a sad example of the difficulties which crop up in trying to deal with resurgent nationalism by peaceful and democratic means only after first trying suppression. Thus the latest home rule proposals brought from Paris by Resident General Gilbert Grandval are being rejected because they do not contemplate return of a sultan ousted by the French and pro-French Berbers.

It is possible to sympathize with the French dilemma without condoning the original mistake. The return of the banished sultan at this time might further inflame the Moroccan rebellion. The ideal solution, no doubt, calls for a large measure of independence, perhaps in all spheres except defense and foreign affairs, under a new regime of cool heads.

French settlers in Morocco have been anything but co-operative. They even murdered the editor of a conciliatory French newspaper. They have met violence with violence, and have been quieted only by the Foreign Legion. Morocco's natives also are divided, most of the Berbers being pro-French simply because the Arabs are anti-French.

Still another factor is the immaturity and relative youth of the native population. Despite earnest French efforts to spread sanitary and medical facilities, most Moroccans still die in their twenties. And there is widespread unemployment, which because of partial education is an aggravated source of discontent and trouble.

A solution would be difficult even if earlier Resident Generals had not sought to rule by bayonet. Now Grandval, a sincere reformer, really has a job on his hands. Miracles are not to be expected, but it is to be hoped that he persists and that he continues to have the backing of Paris against those hotheads who will worsen matters rather than settle them. It must be of some help to him to know that he has the support of the most respected French newspapers against those whom Francois Mauriac calls "the feudalists," and that this support probably reflects the opinion of most good Frenchmen.

Blood in Golden Goa

The violent results of the "non-violent" Indian force's "peaceful invasion" of Goa ought to convince Indians and Portuguese alike that this is not the civilized way to debate liberation. Prime Minister Nehru opposed the mass "invasion," though he had no objection to individuals crossing the border. But this policy did not work as well as it did last year, when only about 20 invaders were arrested by Portuguese officials.

Several thousands took part in the demonstration on India's Independence Day, and there were deaths and wounding in consequence. The Independence day violence was followed by mob action in Bombay against the Portuguese consulate and foreigners in general. As an Indian in Bombay said a few days ago, "Soon Goa will not be the issue. Blood will be the issue."

Portugal has justification in past history for its claims to Goa and to its two other tiny enclaves in India, Damao and Diu, some 450 miles to the north. Goa has been in its possession nearly 450 years, since its prosperity as a trading center gave it the sobriquet of Golden. But no justification for Portugal's continuance there can be found in present history.

A fever of independence has been sweeping the world since the Second World War. India has become its foremost symbol. The British got out of India in 1947; the French, who held a few coastal points, followed suit last year.

Portugal will eventually be forced to recognize the realities. Why not now, before there is further bloodshed, further bitterness? A neutral commission, under the auspices of the United Nations, is the proper means to a settlement. Until they adopt it, the parties to the dispute will not stand with clean hands before the bar of world opinion.

Nonpartisan Birthday Party

Nineteen years ago a new office was opened in the Federal Building in St. Louis, with one federal employee, a desk, chair and brief case. That was the small beginning of the local branch of the national Social Security Administration, which is observing its twentieth anniversary.

When the Social Security Act became law on Aug. 14, 1935, only one American worker in ten was covered by any kind of retirement system. The Great Depression had raised the problem of national insecurity for nearly everyone else. Today, nine out of 10 persons who work for a living can look forward to security in old age with the help of the federal retirement benefits. Some 83,000 persons now receive benefits in the St. Louis metropolitan area alone.

Social security has made a remarkable record in 20 years. One of its more remarkable points is that this program is one phase of the New Deal which partisan critics generally fail to criticize, and even try to expand. Americans can wish it a strictly nonpartisan happy birthday.

The President to the Teachers

President Eisenhower was right as right can be when he told the American Federation of Teachers that salaries commensurate to their services would go a long way to solve the nation's serious shortage of competent teachers. Yet his message was received with less than the enthusiasm it might have elicited because his own Administration so far has done virtually nothing to improve this situation.

Instead of promptly throwing all his influence behind plans for remedial action, the President accepted as his own the proposal for a White House conference on school needs which will not be held until next fall—after still another school year has started—and of which little in the way of results is to be expected.

The President's message to the Teachers' Federation suggests that he is more conscious of the need. If so, he will speed action in every way he can—for every year without adequate educational facilities means that thousands and thousands of children have missed a year of good schooling.

Better Reading for Youngsters

The city's new Board of Review for Juvenile Readers has decided not to act primarily as an agency of censorship. It will put heavy emphasis on the encouragement of good juvenile reading. This is a welcome effort to reverse the literary version of Gresham's law, an effort to prove not that bad reading drives out the good, but that the good can drive out the bad.

Parents, teachers and all others concerned with the young—and distressed by the effects of horror comics, crook books and worse—will gladly second this policy. After all, the elimination of smut and vulgarity alone would be a negative victory. Avoidance of the undesirable is not enough for either young or old.

The board is entitled to all the help it can get in working out its policy. It is entitled to help, too, in the police function assigned to it by law. As we have said before, the distributors of periodicals—the newstands, the drug stores and other places that sell books and magazines—can do as much as the publishers to preserve community decency. They need not peddle everything that is offered to them. If some publisher is eager to make a dirty dollar, they need not help him. The review board has asked for this kind of co-operation. If it is forthcoming, there will be few occasions for censorship or for bringing in the police.

The St. Louis board is making a prudent, intelligent approach to its job of dealing with a nasty mess. If the public is set against the pornography and depravity racket, the board will have no great trouble in carrying out its task while avoiding the pitfalls of arbitrariness.

Priority for the New Workhouse

Warden Baynes's report that there are jobs at the Workhouse for fewer than half the inmates ought to be a matter of some concern to his superiors at City Hall. Idleness in a correctional institution can only lead to trouble. It also gives impressionable young first offenders a wide opportunity to pick up habits and knowledge that can corrode their lives and hurt the community.

The city has an important responsibility to prevent, or at least minimize, these unhappy prospects. This suggests that the Tucker Administration examine the possibilities for keeping its Workhouse charges busy, perhaps in a school program if nothing else. It also suggests that the proposed new Workhouse, authorized by the people in the May bond issue election, deserves much higher priority than it has been assigned. It should be among the first projects started.

Until the new Workhouse is a reality, the 100-year-old institution on South Broadway is likely to prove a thorn in the side of any city Administration that takes its responsibilities seriously.

"NOVEMBER—AND YOU?"

Iowa's Press on the Russians' Visit

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Most editors saw a good harvest, but a few were genuinely disturbed; fact that the visitors were not really farmers brought the heaviest criticism; one opposed telling a despotism how to prosper; most liked "people-to-people" angle.

Comments Reprinted From the Des Moines Register

Most Iowa newspapers which commented editorially concluded that a lot of good resulted from the visit of the Soviet farm delegation to Iowa.

There were, of course, exceptions. A few Iowa newspapers were genuinely disturbed by the visit.

But by and large Iowa newspapers saw the visit, and the trip to Russia by an American delegation, as important steps toward the relaxation of East-West tensions.

Several papers took a view similar to the one expressed in the Oskaloosa Daily Herald:

"If the Russian officials are robots controlled by the Kremlin, they let their hair down and did a lot of talking during their stay in the state.

"They have indicated some sweeping changes will be made in the Soviet farm program after they return to Russia.

"They frankly declared surprise over the efficiency of the American farm family, over the free exchange of farm news, over the constant flow of information on agricultural advances to the press, farm publications and groups."

Several other papers viewed the Russian visit as the first sign of the crumbling of the Iron Curtain.

Visits Should Be Repeated

The Washington Evening Journal noted (as did many Iowa papers) that the delegation was not composed of horny-handed men of the soil, although they did seem to be "farmers at heart."

The Jefferson Bee had no illusions about the effect of the visit to Iowa on the Russians' economic ideas, but nevertheless "We think the visit one which can make a positive contribution to world peace. It is the type of thing which should be repeated and repeated again and again until mutual acquaintances and understanding have made war unthinkable."

A number of newspapers, including some which welcomed the Russians to Iowa and practically all of those which were cool to the visit, commented on the inability or unwillingness of the Soviet delegation to understand the "secret" of American agricultural production—the incentive of private gain.

The Atlantic News-Telegram, however, thought the Russians might catch on:

"We do not anticipate that the Russian agricultural leaders touring Iowa will learn much about the technical part of Iowa farming operations, but one thing they should learn because it can be observed everywhere they go.

"That is that far fewer men can take care of far fewer acres and produce more food in Iowa than is the case in Russia.

"Some of that difference is of course due to the mechanization of United States farms. But a major part is due to the superior efficiency of United States farm operators as compared to farm operators in Russia.

"Farmer Working for Himself"

"Some more of it is due to the fact that the United States farmer is working for himself, not for the government under some political party hack who attempts to combine a political program with his farming plans.

"If the Russians learn that much and put their learning into practice when they get home, they will help their country a great deal."

The Charles City Press, however, commented that:

"The only thing the Russians were unable to accept apparently was the freedom under which the American farmer operates. This is understandable. To accept the premise would be the same as admitting that Russian Communism was inferior to the American system of representative government and free enterprise in business and farming."

The Oelwein Register was one paper that switched its position on the visit once the delegation had arrived in Iowa.

"When announcement was made that Russians would be shown our agricultural installations we editorialized that we thought it was unwise and short-sighted.

"We sensed that the weakest link in the Soviet iron chain of strength was its agricultural production. Were we wise to show them American know-how thus helping them pass us in another field?

"Now we believe we were wrong. "The exchange of visits by Russians and Americans, coming simultaneously with the summit conference at Geneva . . . has been well timed and we believe will go a long way to (1) show a group of Russian people the advantages of our republican form of government at work, (2) reveal the advantages of free enterprise, incentive and private ownership, (3) show the world our willingness to show our knowledge, further convincing other nations that we are not imperialistic nor warmongers."

Crutch for a Pernicious System

The undeniable fact that the agricultural delegation was not made up of actual farmers in the American sense prompted the heaviest and most consistent criticism of their visit here. The Mason City Globe-Gazette deplored the visit of the delegation and said:

"Our feeling is that any help given to world Communism in such a project as this is a crutch for a pernicious economic and political system which ought to be dealt with as such.

"Iowa visitors have been party politicians, full-flowered bureaucrats representing their bosses in the Kremlin, not the downtrodden peasants of Russia.

"Those peasants would be best served if the tyranny which afflicts them as brutally as the czaristic despotism which it replaced were allowed to expire."

The Sioux City Journal took a similar position:

"It is obvious that the Kremlin has full control over the visitors. Virtually all of them are in government jobs.

"And we cannot visualize Communist party faithfuls returning to Russia to make public statements about what they saw over here or giving a true picture of American agriculture."

Ordinary People Can Get Along

The Mitchell County Press of Osage said:

"Frankly we are scared. We believe that the situation is fraught with danger.

"The Russians are presenting a totally new and different face to the peoples of the Western world. The Russian government is now the champion of relaxation."

But most Iowa newspapers inclined to the view of the Centerville Inocian that the Russian visit proved the compatibility of individual people.

"It's not ordinary people that can't get along," mused the Inocian.

"The Russian delegation and the Iowa people are hitting it off swell.

"We like them—and they seem to like us. What applies to people—could apply to governments."

SORT OF FAMILIAR

From The Milwaukee Journal.

"If it is a good road," the man said, "it is so full of other motorists that you do not get there. If it is not full of motorists, it probably does not go where you want to go. If you get there, you probably will not find anywhere to park."

It was the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth, speaking. And it was about English roads and parking conditions he was complaining.

But there were anyone who will deny that he could well have been talking about conditions in many parts of the United States?

Not Yet the 'Yeti'

THE ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN, by Ralph Izard. (Doubleday, 250 pgs., $4.)

The Abominable Snowman is an animal that has been reported living high in the Himalayas on the sides of Mount Everest itself. Many mountain climbers and Sherpa natives have reported seeing the man-like creature or signs of it.

Most of the accounts agree the animal, called a "Yeti" by the Sherpas, is slightly over five feet tall, walks erect on the two hind legs, and is as heavily furred as a bear. Certain of the monasteries have sections of what they say is the skin of a Yeti, and the Lamas show them to visitors with considerable pride.

When the British finally conquered Everest, The Times of London had exclusive rights to publication of the account. The London Daily Mail in an effort to also cover the story sent one of their reporters, Ralph Izard, to try to tag along behind the British party as best he could. His book, "An Innocent on Everest," was the story of the quite creditable climbing job he and his group did.

Out of this experience and a chat with Colonel John Hunt, grew an interest in the Abominable Snowman that set him to compiling a dossier on the beast. On the strength of this, he persuaded the Daily Mail to underwrite another expedition.

to Everest to search for, and possibly bring back a Yeti.

"The Abominable Snowman" is the account of the mounting of the expedition and the search of a skilled team of zoologists, anthropologists, photographers and climbers for the rare animal. The group with sometimes more than a hundred Sherpa porters and porters spent five months on the slopes of Everest, often at altitudes of 20,000 feet or more. They found many signs and collected many reliable reports, but not once laid eyes on a single Yeti.

Yet any one of the striking photographs of the terrain over which they were hunting gives the possible explanation: nowhere on earth could there be a more rugged and forbidding hiding place. Izard and his colleagues left feeling that the Yeti were there, and that some later group would yet bring back the greatest zoological discovery of the century. JOHN S. HARRIS.

"Rural Mo. 50 Years Ago

DEAR CHRISTY, by Christine Cooper Moon. (Exposition Press, 127 pgs., $2.50.)

Mrs. Moon has lived in Missouri all of her 50 years and, now a grandmother, she has set down, for Dear Christy and her other grandchildren, and other women's grandchildren, her recollections of what life was like in Missouri when she was a little girl. For 12 years Mrs. Moon, living in Fayette, Mo., has been confined to a wheel chair and has had time to recall experience and incidents of her girlhood in Randolph and Chariton counties. The book, without literary pretensions, is written in a simple but earnest style. Its chief charm is its wholesomeness and the light it throws on the manners and customs of the Missouri countryside half a century ago.

Grade A Nature Study

THE HUNTING WASP, by John Crompton. (River-side Press, 240 pgs., $3.)

If there is a question in anyone's mind that the study of hunting wasps can be entertaining and fascinating, Mr. Crompton's book provides the answer. Hunting wasps are those that use other insects as food for their offspring. To do this they must be able to sting and paralyze many times their own size and equally well armed. The methods and habits of these wasps must certainly be among the strangest on the face of the earth.

MONEY figures in professional golf don't always reflect essential playing qualities, but they are beginning to indicate that stolid, taciturn Julius Boros is a "high stakes" winner.

The big payoff in the "World" at Tam O'Shanter, his second top prize in four years in that rich event, also represented the fifth time over the same span that he had won a first place of unusual value or glory.

A native of Connecticut who turned pro only five years ago, the 35-year-old Boros had setbacks the last few years. There was personal tragedy in 1951 in the death of his first wife, and later, in 1954, a broken leg interrupted his renewed activity on the tournament circuit.

Despite these misfortunes, he is constructing a rather unusual record in money winning. His first big splash, of course, was winning the 1952 National Open and then topping off that season was his first "World" victory.

In 1953 he earned $5,595 year in tournament winnings, but he came right back in 1954 to win two of the biggest top prizes on the circuit, taking down $7200 in the Ardmore Open and $5000 in the Manakiki Open before the leg injury stopped him.

Now with his repeat in the Tam O'Shanter "World," Boros has pocketed cash at a rate exceeding even his top year of 1952 when he earned $37,033.

His 1955 figure is $61,971. For four seasons, starting with 1952, his official money winning total is $121,981, and the significance in this figure is that there is no one else close to that total for the same time.

Striking It Rich.

CARY MIDDLECOFF, who has won some 13 tournaments during the same period that Boros has won just five, has about $95,000 showing in official winnings for the four seasons. Other circuit stars are below that amount.

So big Jay, a 260-pound husky, is making his hay at opportune times. He'll make more in the coming year when he plays out George S. May's contract, guaranteeing $55,000 more for the rigorous exhibition schedule.

This, of course, will somewhat interfere with Boros's tournament appearances, as it did with Bob Toski's last year. But a dollar is the same, whether earned in competition or exhibition, and as Boros indicated at Chicago, he'll play in as many as he can.

It will be a steadier way of income, particularly for Boros, who struck it rich in a few tournaments but was mediocre in many others.

"One of the tricks," commented a follower of the golf tour, "is to be lucky at the right time, during the right week, and Boros has done well in that way. Maybe it's his calm nature that has helped him win the big prizes. He certainly is not volatile and while others may be inclined to blow up while trying to win the big prize, the steady Boros walks right in."

At any rate, one-time accountant Boros will have plenty to account for in income-tax time in the next two years.

Tee to Green.

DOUGLAS SANDERS, the University of Florida golfer who surprised in the men's amateur play at Chicago, will be a man to watch in the National Amateur, if he qualifies.

"The way he talked over television after his 'World' win, he sounded as if he may harbor ideas of turning pro before too long a time. . . . He was eight strokes better than second-place Hillman Rios Jr. in the 'World.' . . . Patty Berg and Cary Middlecoff both spoke of the important part luck plays in tournament victories. . . . Boros could say 'Amateur' when he hit his bounce back on the green after hitting spectators at the seventeenth hole. . . . He got a par three there and followed that with a birdie. . . . Luck easily could have looked the other way. . . . He didn't have too much margin to spare for Freddie Haas finished only two strokes back."

Forest Park Golf Club is proud of its Jake Rossini, tournament director. At Johnson reports, "Jake has won the club championship the last two years, reducing his handicap from 10 to two strokes. . . . Johnson says Jake intends to play in a new public links event to be set up soon. . . . It'll be a public-course championship-of-champions tournament at 36 holes, with representatives from nine or more public links courses. . . . The St. Louis public links association group has scheduled a showing of Ben Hogan's movie, 'Follow the Sun,' Wednesday evening at Indian Meadows Golf Club."

Spahn Punches Another Hole in His Cardinal Meal Ticket

Lefty Gets Home Run, Triple and A Single

By Jack Rice

Some pitchers have annuities, to guarantee they can grow old gracefully. Some of the luckier ones, notably left-handers such as Warren Spahn, have the Cardinals. It amounts to the same thing, and the payments are less.

Spahn pitches for the Braves. He joined them in Boston, shortly after Paul Revere won the Old North Church steeple chase, and has stayed with them through thick and thin and Milwaukee. There are indications Spahn will be pitching in the National League just as long as there are Cardinals, and a Busch Stadium that favors a left-handed hitting Cardinal team.

He has a 6-year-old son, too, and for a moment last night after Spahn had defeated the Cardinals, 12 to 1, there was a vision for sale, cheap. Imagine Spahn, staying around to pitch against Cardinals teams until they begin to catch up with him a little, say at age 70. He then could turn over his practice to Junior.

There is only one blue in the vision, said Spahn. His park "likes baseball, fools around with it a lot, but he's a right-hander." Junior will have to accept a lesser legacy. This is a shame because for father life is about to begin at 40—forty victories for the Cardinals. There's no telling what it will become.

Over-all Score, 39 to 22.

The latest victory was his thirty-ninth, and a Milwaukee man asked the pitcher, "What's the record of your spell over the Cardinals?" Spahn raised an eyebrow, and said a few words to indicate it's not exactly a spell. He has lost 22 games to the Cardinals.

"I don't see where it's such a picnic for a left-hander to pitch to this club in this park especially," said Spahn. "Not with that short porch out there." He referred to the right-field bleachers, vulnerable now without a screen.

"They've always had lots of left-handed power, though it doesn't seem to have worked out so well for them right now. I don't know why," he said, and didn't seem particularly interested in finding out. The facts were enough to make him run. Spahn worked around to his locker, and back to the secret of his spell, or junior-grade trance, "I'll tell you one thing," he said, "I've only walked one in the last two games I've pitched against the Cardinals, and that was Musial tonight. That home run (Solly) Hemus hit. So what? I threw it up there; make 'em hit. I'm sure not going to walk him. The percentages are with me."

Except for the home run, the percentages were with him. Hemus hit a fast ball, off the fists and into the pavilion seats in right. Maybe it wasn't quite the fast ball it has been. Spahn has won 11 and lost 12, and it's a late date for last year's 21-game winner to be under 500.

Compliment by Haddix.

There may not be quite the same amount of smoke, but there still is fire, and there is cunning. Harvey Haddix, a left-hander of some note and power years, paid Spahn a compliment last night. Haddix moved to the south end of the Cardinal dugout, the better to see what Spahn was doing.

"He was throwing that change, taking a little off, all the time," Haddix said. "Yeah, and at the end he was throwing harder than he was at the start."

"Sneaky, huh?" said a left-handed batter. Haddix laughed. "You can do that when you've got what he had," he said. Spahn had his runs early. Eddie Mathews homered, and that was his thirty-first, after Dan O'Connell walked in the first inning. Spahn didn't think that was enough. The pitcher hit a home run, and he hit a triple, and he singled. He drove in three runs, and he scored two. That's the trouble with pitchers who have annuities and the Cardinals. They never tire of clipping coupons.

Protective helmet and ball that struck it fall to ground as BILL BRUTON of the Milwaukee Braves slides safely home in seventh inning of game with the Cardinals at Busch Stadium. He scored from first base on Danny O'Connell's double. Out-fielder Bill Virdon recovered the ball and threw to plate, but the ball hit Bruton before reaching Catcher BILL SARNI. The Braves made 12 runs in all, the Cards one.

Caroline Talks Contract With Pro Argonauts

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Aug. 16 (UP)—Halfback J. C. Caroline, ruled ineligible at the University of Illinois yesterday for failing a summer school course, is discussing a contract with the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. It was learned today.

Caroline was to meet an Argonaut scout in Champaign Thursday. The scout approached him earlier this week, reportedly offering him a one-year player's contract for $15,000.

Caroline said he will be available still was uncertain due to his status in the draft. He took an Army physical examination last week, but the decision was left to the Surgeon General's office in Washington and was not expected for 60 or 90 days.

Caroline said today he thought he would be 4-F due to a shoulder injury suffered in a football game last fall. He said doctors believe the injury has no effects at the Chicago induction center.

Caroline said he was in no hurry to sign a professional contract because he believed there would be more offers.

Rivers Defeats King for 7th Victory in Row

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Neal Rivers, a baby-faced middleweight with a real man's punch, had the most important victory of his budding career to his credit today.

The 21-year-old prospect decisively outpointed Jimmy King, the European-polished veteran from Birmingham, Ala., in a television 10-rounder at St. Nicholas arena last night. It was the seventh straight win for the youngster from Niagara Falls, N. Y., who was making his first start as a pro in his home state.

Rivers has been campaigning on the west coast. He got the TV shot against the 30-year-old King because none of the better middleweights around dared to mix it up with the traveling Alabama Negro. Twenty-five of King's last 27 fights have been fought in Europe.

The husky youngster opened a jagged cut over King's left eye in the second round and piled up a huge lead going into the hectic ninth. In that rousing round each fighter went down and King, a 2-1 favorite, almost pulled victory out of the ashes.

After taking the mandatory eight count following a half slip, half punch early in the ninth, the slender King dropped his foe for eight with a left hook that shook Rivers from head to toe. Rivers was groggy when he arose but King was too arm-weary to put over the clincher.

King's cut required 10 stitches. He'll be out for at least two months. Rivers also was cut over the left eye but he didn't need any stitching. King weighed 154 1/2, Rivers 156.

The unanimous votes for Rivers were: Referee Barney Felix and Judge Leo Birnbaum, 7-2-1 each, and Judge Bert Grant, 8-2. The AP card had Rivers in front 8-2.

Union Printer Players Drafted by Kutis North and Borbein-Young for Muny Title Playoffs.

By Neal Russo
Both Kutis North, defending champion in Muny baseball, and Borbein-Young have reached into Eddie Moran's Union Printers squad to draft players for the playoffs opening Sunday at Heine Meine Field.

Stan Mann, who can go get 'em in the outfield like Stan the Man at Grand and Dodger, was chosen by Kutis. Leo Blandin, shortstop, who can handle second base and the outfield as well, was picked by Borbein. Both are good hitters and fast.

Mann is so determined a base-runner that he ripped up several uniforms rounding the bags this season.

Borbein-Young, which romped to the state non-pro title without losing a game, passed up its berth in the national tournament at Wichita, Kan., so runner-up Crystal City will go instead. Borbein beat Crystal twice in the state meet.

Holden, Mo., an also-ran in the same tourney, will compete at Wichita, anyway, because it finished fourth in the national meet last season.

Glencoe Keeps Rolling.
Manager Rito Jaeger really has his Glencoe team on the move in the National division of the County League. After suffering four defeats in its first six starts, Glencoe reeled off five straight victories to finish in a second-place tie in the first half.

Glencoe has stayed in the groove in the second half, winning all six games so far to run

Overland, Beaten by Oklahoma City, Plays Wichita Tonight

Winners Put Over Two Big Innings

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

ENID, Okla., Aug. 16—Some of the Overland players took their cowboy ambles a step farther yesterday as they went horseback riding in a nearby corral, but the saddle-jouncing must have been too much for the city boys' equilibrium. Neither their hitting nor fielding was up to par a few hours later as they dropped an 8-5 decision to some oil-well jockeys from Oklahoma City in the American Legion regional tournament.

It seems to be traditional for St. Louis area Legion teams to do it the hard way, for Overland again will be following a pattern set by Maplewood last year when it attempts to beat its way back in a game tonight with once-beaten Wichita. The loser in this one goes home.

Wichita sent the club from State Center, Ia. (population 1021) back to the corn country with a 12-1 victory.

That 1954 Maplewood team won its opener, then dropped the second game, in its regional, sectional and national tournaments, but was able to recover in all but the final one. Overland lost its second game of the state meet to Joplin, but rebounded powerfully.

Cowboy Kurtz Cooled Off.
Yesterday a group of Overland regulars tried to impress some of the local horseflesh with their day-old Stetsons. With veteran horseman Mort Jacobs, a member of the Thoman-Boothe Post, watching over, the boys got a hint of the rough ride they were in for when it came time to meet other Oklahoma teams at night.

Even Roland (Cowboy) Kurtz was cooled off some by the ride. He came through with a sharp, run-scoring single his first time at bat, and was as strong as ever from his shortstop position, but he didn't do much in four other hitting chances.

The Missourians piled up a 3-0 lead before Oklahoma got to bat in the first, but the inning could easily have been more productive. Three singles, two walks and an error gave the home team runs. Then, with the bases loaded with just one out, Oklahoma Starter Billy Owens could have been ousted with just another hit, but two easy outs ended the inning. Bob Wickham was Overland's starting pitcher. After two hitless innings, he was pounded in the third. The lead-off man singled and was thrown out by Center Fielder Bob Burda when he tried for second. Pitcher Owens then homered over the fence. After getting the next batter to foul out, Wickham walked two in succession. A double by Jim Dobson and a hit by Ray Bond made it 4-3 in Oklahoma's favor.

Helmering Also Pounded.
The old stopper, Fred Helmering, relieved Wickham and ended the flare-up. He followed with three hitless innings and when Overland tied the game on a single by Bill Allen, a walk to John Heives and a hit by Burda in the first of the seventh, the outlook again was bright for Missouri.

Helmering was probably overdue for a bad inning, however. In his half of the seventh, Oklahoma suddenly treated Fred as the older Sooners treat Missouri U. football teams. Two hits and an error were followed by Dobson's home run. Bond doubled and Bob Hembree tripled in the fourth run of the frame, before Helmering could put an end to it.

Overland had another opportunity to get back, but didn't leap in the saddle and head 'em off at the pass. Or passes, that is. With one out, an Oklahoma error was followed by three successive bases on balls, forcing in a run. Pitcher Owens left the game, but Dennis Shaw fanned Meives and got Ray Wilson to fly out.

Western stories never run smoothly, and if Overland can follow the script, this is where they take care of them Kansas homers, then come back on Wednesday and Thursday nights to conquer Oklahoma.

Frankly, that's a tall order, m'am.

OVERLAND OKLAHOMA CITY
Aug. 16 (AP)—Overland, Okla., 3-0; Oklahoma City, Okla., 8-5.

There's a dogfight in the American division with four once-beaten teams—Creve Coeur, Ballwin, Manchester and Vigus. In a 5-4 triumph over Valley Park, Marty Heinz of Manchester fanned 16 but needed a two-run homer by Clyde Langenbeck in a three-run ninth to pull out a victory.

Joe Beekle and Al Hunt homered for Vigus. Bill Lange had three hits for Ballwin and Jim Kahlmeyer got three safeties for Creve Coeur in their teams' latest triumphs.

Muegler to Kansas.
Art Muegler of the H. A. Dalleys, Khoury Intermediate team, will enroll at the University of Kansas. The Beaumont High product has football and baseball in mind.

Hap Currier, the long-time Muny veteran who is pitching excellent relief ball on the sandlots in Tyler, Tex., where he moved last year, was named to hurl in the Oil Belt League All-Star game. Hap is 50 years old.

Strike Department.
Strikes were numerous in the C.Y.C. junior semifinal victory for St. Agatha over St. Ann, 8-1. Bob Baer of St. Agatha fanned 14 and rival Dave Dickens, who could have used better support, whiffed 12. Dickens, Legion Leo Browne award winner last year, also had two hits.

Football Tryouts.
The Black Panthers football team (boys 16 years old and under) will work out every Sunday at 1 p.m. at Roosevelt High. Members of the 1954 squad and other interested candidates are invited. Call or write R. F. Haring, PA. 7-4939, (5647 Waterman).

Sluggers in Spotlight as Yanks Win Two to Take Lead in A.L.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (UP)—The sluggers have stolen the spotlight in the tense American League battle and knocked the old axiom that pitching pays off in a tight pennant race into a cocked hat.

It used to be that the experts singled out the contender with the strongest pitching staff and confidently predicted it would win out. And, more often than not, they proved correct.

But it's the boys "with the big bang" who are turning out to be the key men in the current four-team struggle. The New York Yankees, for example, recaptured first place by a half game for the first time since July 27, yesterday when they downed the last-place Baltimore Orioles, 5-4 and 12-6. A ninth-inning home run by Hank Bauer gave them the winning margin in the opener while Mickey Mantle's twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth round-trippers of the season carried them to victory in the nightcap.

At Boston, meanwhile, a pretty fair country hitter named Ted Williams hammered over the thirteenth grand slam homer of his career to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 8-4 triumph over the Washington Senators.

Pitching? Both Yankee starters failed to last through the sixth inning and Mel Parnell, Boston's starter, was knocked out in four-run third inning after being presented with a 6-0 lead. The Yankees have gotten only one complete game a run. Pitcher Owens left the game, but Dennis Shaw fanned Meives and got Ray Wilson to fly out.

Western stories never run smoothly, and if Overland can follow the script, this is where they take care of them Kansas homers, then come back on Wednesday and Thursday nights to conquer Oklahoma.

Ceremonies to Open National Casting Tourney

Opening ceremonies of the forty-seventh national casting championship will be held today at 5 p.m. at the St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club docks in Forest Park.

A group of Boy Scouts will raise a flag to start the program. Officials scheduled to speak are: Dr. H. C. Will, president of the St. Louis Club; Clarence Anthes of Waukesha, Wis., president of the National Casting Clubs Association; Herb Neumann, general chairman of the tourney; Clem Forcade, co-chairman of tourney committee, and Palmer Baumes of the Department of Parks and Recreation.

Action in the five-day tourney starts at 8 a.m. tomorrow with a field of about 40 anglers competing in the trout fly distance event. This is a highly specialized event. It is estimated there are only about 55 trout distance casters in the country. A similar number of casters are entered in the salmon fly distance event, scheduled at 1 p.m.

Tourney participants practiced yesterday. Only a few in the entire field of about 350 are to compete in both casting and skish events. The 200-pound 18-year-old Jon Tarantino of San Francisco, who has been casting since he was eight years old, will defend both his casting and all-around skish championships. He won the national skish titles in 1952 and 1954 and won the casting honors for the past two years. He holds the world all-distance accuracy title.

A football, baseball, track and rifle team member in high school, Tarantino will go out for football and baseball at the University of California which he will attend this fall as a freshman pre-law student.

Henry Fujita of Cleveland, and his son, Dick, are both former national titleholders. Henry, winner of the dry fly accuracy title four times, is the official fly maker for the national casting association. He does this work during his spare time and makes about 10 an hour. Dick, who is 28 years old, won the five-eighths-ounce accuracy event here in 1944. The father is 67 years of age and has competed in the nationals since 1936.

St. Louis's chief contender for the women's championship, the 16-year-old Imelda Ann Gavin went through a long workout on the Post-Dispatch lake. Miss Gavin, a DeAndreis High School senior, is a member of the St. Louis Casting Club.

Missouri's Duck Season Will Be

Oct. 28 to Jan. 5
JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 16 (AP)—

MISSOURI'S duck and goose season was set yesterday by the State Conservation Commission for a 70-day period from Oct. 28 to Jan. 5.

The daily bag limit will be four ducks and eight in possession. A day's bag may include one wood duck. The goose limits are unchanged at five daily and five in possession, including not more than two Canada or white-fronts.

The dates were announced by Jay Morrow, assistant conservation director, on the heels of a Federal Fish and Wildlife Service announcement of basic hunting regulations for the 1955-56 season. Morrow noted that while Missouri's request for permission to establish a zone system was rejected, South-eastern Missouri hunters will get a better break this year because of the longer season.

School Junior, has won four titles in the Missouri Valley competition and picked up several awards in the Great Lakes and St. Louis city tournaments this summer.

Morris Baine of Washington, D.C., spent more than four straight hours on the docks in his workout session. Others on the docks were Steve Aleshi of Kansas City, a former champion; Myron Gregory of San Francisco; Spencer Hincley of Los Angeles; Clare Darling of Detroit; and Marion Garber of Toledo. Neumann, St. Louis angler who won a national event several years ago at Washington, D.C., will be competing in his sixteenth straight national tourney.

Aussies Win, To Meet U.S. For Davis Cup

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16 (AP)—Harry (Happy) Hopman, Australia's Davis Cup captain, was safely back in the challenge round and the wolves back home, who have been howling for his scalp for two years, will have to hold off until they see the results of the big one pitting the Aussies against the United States.

Two final singles matches are scheduled against Italy at the Germantown Cricket club today, but they are meaningless. The Aussies gained the challenge round when their doubles team of Rex Hartwig and Lew Hoad whipped Orlando Sirola and Nicola Pietrangeli, 7-5, 13-11, 7-5. That gave them a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The last two singles send Pietrangeli against Hoad and Sirola against Ken Rosewall. So now Hopman can start working his charges toward the challenge round in Forest Hills, Aug. 26-28. The Americans won the cup back last year after the Aussies had held it four years running—1930, '31, '52, '53.

'Marciano Mumbo.'

GROSSINGER, N. Y., Aug. 16 (UP)—World heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano soon will be dancing to a different tune.

Composer Irving Fields, inspired by the champion's rhythm in exercising, is writing the "Marciano Mumbo." So now Hopman can start working his charges toward the challenge round in Forest Hills, Aug. 26-28. The Americans won the cup back last year after the Aussies had held it four years running—1930, '31, '52, '53.

54 Strikeouts in 19-Inning Legion Game at Billings

BILLINGS, Mont., Aug. 16 (UP).

IT WAS no night for the batters when Billings eliminated Lewiston, Ida., from the region Junior American Legion tournament last night with a 19-inning, 1-0 victory.

Fans who sat through the four-hour and 10-minute session saw 54 strikeouts. Twenty-four were by Sam Cahner, who went all the way for Lewiston, 25 by Billings starter Bob Bollingbrook and five more by reliever Dick Montee.

Montee's single decided the game. He went to second when an attempt to pick him off first misfired, and scored on an error.

Bobby Watson Ninth To Sign With Hawks

Bobby Watson, the one-time standout with University of Kentucky, signed for his second year of professional basketball when he agreed to terms with the St. Louis Hawks yesterday.

He was the ninth player to sign with the N.B.A. team.

The five-foot-11, 165-pound Watson, who last season was with Minneapolis and then with the Hawks in Milwaukee, saw only limited action in that season. But he was effective during the late weeks of the campaign, sparking the Hawks in a stretch over which they won 12 of 17 games.

FBI Already Inquiring Into Sport

DETROIT, Aug. 16 (AP)—The National Boxing Association will ask Congress to help clean up professional boxing. The job, it says, is too big for the association.

The group took the action yesterday after it learned the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been investigating the big-time ring game, which it is alleged has long been linked with underworld figures.

At the same time, taking a cue from Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania, Anthony Petronella, N.B.A. president, promised to name today a seven-man committee to develop nationwide uniform boxing laws. Each state now has its own laws, which vary from state to state.

George A. Barton, former N.B.A. president and for 13 years chairman of the Minnesota Athletic Commission, told the 150 representatives of state boxing commissions from 47 states, Canada and Latin American countries that the Department of Justice entered the investigation in June through its anti-trust division.

He expects call to testify.

Barton said he had been approached by an agent and gave him "what I knew about the operation of the International Boxing Club and the International Boxing Managers' Guild."

Barton said he expected to be called to Washington to testify before a Senate investigating committee as a result of the inquiry.

He added that Julius H. Helff, crusading chairman of the New York Athletic Commission, also has promised to testify before the Senate investigators. New York is the only state not represented in the N.B.A.

"You can't merely point an accusing finger at an alleged mobster suspected of being an undercover manager and order him to divorce himself from all connections with boxing," Barton said. "You must have evidence."

Obtaining evidence is about as simple as picking up a gob of quicksilver with a baseball catcher's glove.

Unanimous Vote for Action.

It was after learning of the FBI probe that convention delegates adopted unanimously a resolution "urgently requesting a committee of Congress to inaugurate at the earliest possible moment a complete investigation of boxing in the United States."

The idea, the resolution states, is to "determine whether there exists such undesirable interests as has been publicly charged."

The resolution was prepared by Abe Green, long-time member of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, and Albert Klein, a member of Gov. Leader's newly-appointed Pennsylvania Boxing Commission.

Leader suspended professional boxing in his state last May while his commission drew up new fight laws. The laws now await his signature. He has promised to restore boxing when the new code goes into effect.

Petronella said the convention was "100 per cent behind Leader's recommendation for a uniform boxing code. Leader gave the keynote speech at the N.B.A. convention."

Grand Jury Looks Into Wartime Killing of OSS Officer in Italy

13 Witnesses Flown to U.S.—Italian Court Tried 2 Americans in His Group in Absentia, Found Them Guilty.

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (UP)—On the theory that somebody is getting away with murder, the Department of Justice has started a grand jury investigation here into the strange case of Maj. William V. Holohan. Thirteen witnesses have been flown from Italy to testify. The inquiry got under way yesterday.

Holohan was a small, wiry, courageous Office of Strategic Services officer who was killed under mysterious circumstances while carrying out a cloak-and-dagger mission behind enemy lines in northern Italy on Dec. 6, 1944. He was in command of a small detachment of OSS men who were dropped by parachute near Lake Orta, on the Italian-Swiss frontier, to establish contact with Italian partisans who were harassing the Germans.

Carried $12,000 in Cash. Holohan's unit carried about $12,000 in cash and radio equipment to direct air drops of United States arms to the hands of partisans. He was reported lost in a skirmish and was considered a casualty of war until 1949, when his body was found in a weighted sleeping bag at the bottom of Lake Orta, with two bullet holes through the head.

Italian authorities began an investigation, which soon produced statements from two Italian members of Holohan's OSS team he had been murdered by his own men.

At a trial in November 1953, an Italian court held that the murder was planned by two Americans—former Lt. Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh and former Sgt. Carl Lo Dolce of Rochester, N.Y.

Italy tried to extradite the two men but United States courts ruled they could not be forced to leave this country. The Italian court sentenced them, in absentia, to long prison terms.

Because of a loophole in the law that existed during World War II, but has since been plugged, it is apparently impossible to bring Icardi and Lo Dolce to trial on murder charges in any United States court, civil or military. Civil courts do not have jurisdiction because the crime was committed in Italy. Military courts are powerless because the two men were given honorable discharges at the end of the war. (If a similar case came up now, the military would have authority, under the recently enacted uniform code of military justice, to bring them back into uniform for court-martial.)

Two Years' Study. For two years, Justice Department attorneys have been studying their lawbooks looking for a way around this impasse. Now they think they've found it. They would not discuss their strategy in advance of the grand jury hearings.

Some of the Italian witnesses told reporters, before their departure from Milan Tuesday, that United States agents who questioned them seemed to be "interested in the political background" of Holohan's violent death.

They referred to charges that Holohan, a devout Roman Catholic, had sharp differences with Icardi over the way in which air-dropped United States arms should be distributed among Communist and non-Communist partisan bands fighting the Germans in northern Italy.

Icardi, testifying before a House Armed Services subcommittee, which investigated the Holohan case on March 26, 1953, flatly denied any part in the killing. He also denied any effort to get a disproportionate share of arms for Communist partisans.

Icardi stuck by the story he has told from the start—that Holohan was lost in a skirmish with enemy troops who suddenly attacked the OSS mission.

Legal experts said the Government might seek to bring perjury charges against Icardi on the basis of his 1953 testimony before the house subcommittee.

Lo Dolce declined to testify before the house subcommittee. Earlier, in 1951, he had signed, and then repudiated, a detailed confession.

This confession gave a starkly dramatic account of how Holohan met his death.

Lo Dolce said there had been bitter feelings between Icardi and Holohan for a long time, with Icardi constantly complaining that Holohan was not conducting the mission properly. Lo Dolce and two Italian members of the OSS team, whom he called Manin and Pupo, gradually came to share Icardi's hatred for the major, and the four of them began "in a joking way" to plot his murder.

"Somehow, from being just a saying, the thing became serious," Lo Dolce said. "It may have been a means of letting off steam—the fear caused by being in the general situation may have made us want to direct it against something tangible."

At any rate, Lo Dolce said, on the night of Dec. 6, 1944, Manin and Pupo fed Holohan a bowl of poisoned soup. The Major became ill and went to his room, but did not seem to be dying. Lo Dolce said Icardi grew panicky and insisted that he and Lo Dolce flip a coin to see who would shoot Holohan.

"I called and lost," Lo Dolce said. "Manin gave me a gun, his Beretta. We walked in. The Major sat up and said either, 'What is it?' 'Who is it?' or 'What's the matter?' I walked to the side of his bed and fired two shots."

"Manin, Pupo and Icardi picked up the Major. He was heavy and Manin told me to help, but I couldn't bring myself to do anything. The Major was carried to the boat which Manin had waiting on the lake. . . . Manin and Pupo rowed him out to deeper water and dropped his weighted body."

SAYS BUSINESSMEN SHOULD TAKE TIME OUT TO RELAX

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Aug. 16 (UP)—Miss Mathilda Messner, medical gymnastics director at the Battle Creek Sanatorium, said every office should have couches where tired businessmen can take time out to relax.

"The tensions of modern life are too severe to be withstood for eight hours a day," she said.

"A brief respite during the lunch hour, or at four o'clock when sunset fatigue sets in, will do much to restore lacerated nerves and a brain crammed with innumerable details."

Russia Wants to Buy U.S. Farm Machines, Delegation Head Says

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—The head of the Russian farm delegation, Vladimir Matskevich, has disclosed that the Soviet Union is definitely interested in purchasing United States farm machinery.

At a news conference last night, he said the Russians definitely would like to buy diesel tractors with attachments, and a variety of smaller equipment including milking machines, feeders and the like.

Asked whether the Soviet wants to buy in order to use the equipment directly on farms or simply as models for production by Soviet industry, he replied with a Russian proverb:

"You can't divide the bear skin till you've killed the bear."

Embassy Gives Help. Earlier yesterday one of the 12 delegates said in East Lansing, Mich., that a Soviet government representative is negotiating for purchase of American farm machinery. He gave no details but said that the embassy's commercial counselor from Washington joined the delegation recently for this purpose.

Matskevich said that Marilyn Monroe has been invited to the Soviet embassy reception which the delegation will attend next Monday in Washington. It wasn't clear at first whether or not Matskevich was joking, but Georgi Bolshakov, Washington bureau chief of the Soviet news agency, Tass, confirmed that an invitation has been sent to the blond actress. No answer has been received.

Earlier in a press conference, Matskevich caused laughter when he was asked whether he had any comment on Miss Monroe's "proposed trip to Russia." He said, "I haven't visited her farm yet."

Saw Her Film.

Matskevich then was handed a note by another member of the delegation. He read it and made the announcement of the invitation to Miss Monroe, adding, "Now I won't have to visit her farm."

Several members of the delegation had some warm remarks on Miss Monroe two weeks ago after they saw her motion picture, "The Seven Year Itch."

Ten delegates are scheduled to fly this afternoon to San Francisco to begin a tour of California. Two plan to remain in the Midwest. They are specialists in farm machinery and expect to visit factories. The delegates today visited the International Harvester plant here, the last stop of their Chicago tour.

Picket's carrying signs denouncing the Soviet Union stood on a sidewalk before a building which the Russians entered last night. They described themselves as members of organizations they named as the Ukrainian-American youth Association and the American friends of the Anti-Bolshevik Bloc of Nations. It was the fourth such demonstration against the Russian farm leaders during their tour of the United States.

American Group Leaves to See Virgin Lands in Siberia.

ALMA ATA, Kazakh, U.S.S.R., Aug. 16 (AP)—The American farmers who are touring the Soviet Union divided today into two groups, one going to Siberia for a visit to Rubtsovsk, south of Barnaul, the other going to Akmolinsk, in the Kazakh republic. Their aim is to inspect the virgin lands projects of Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

The present plan of all the Americans is to take off by air Thursday, returning to Moscow to end their tour.

Five hundred cheering Russians welcomed the farmers when they arrived at the airport here Sunday and carted them off to a soccer game, followed by a film show. Yesterday the farmers saw a collective farm specializing in sheep and vegetables. They were royally entertained by Alma Ata officials.

Soviet Agriculture, official newspaper of the Soviet ministry of agriculture, continued to praise the Americans and newspapers praised the hospitality shown in the United States to Soviet farmers.

In some places the praise was almost gushing. Touring the Uzbek Republic, Soviet Agriculture reported that the Americans got lush meals tossed at them so fast that Dean William Lambert, of the University of Nebraska, told the Russians "we are not hungry but we are going to eat again so as not to offend our hosts."

ROBBERS STEAL $347 IN FOUR HOLDUPS

Motorist Also Victimized by 2 Men Who Flee With $120.

A total of $347 was taken in four holdups here last night and early today and an additional $120 was taken by two men who forced a motorist from his car and drove off, police reported.

David Skelton, 4337 Laclede avenue, an attendant at the service station at 305 North Vandeventer avenue, was robbed of $152 in cash by a man who threatened him with a revolver, he told police. The robber, a Negro, escaped in an automobile belonging to a customer. The car was later recovered in the 4400 block of Delmar boulevard.

Leslie Booth, 5518 Helen avenue, Jennings, a clerk at the Roell Hotel, Newstead avenue and Olive street, was held up by a man who emptied a money drawer of $100 after displaying a revolver, police said. The man escaped on foot.

An attendant at a service station at 1941 Dodder street, Edgar Riggs, was robbed of $70 in cash by two men who then fled in an automobile, he reported to police. One of the men carried a revolver.

Beulah Barton, a barmaid at Pat and Rose's Tavern, 620 Hickory street, told police two men entered the tavern when she was alone in it early today, one of them armed. They locked her in the rest room and took $25 from the cash register.

Noel H. White, 2856 Wyoming street, was robbed of his wallet containing $120 and a pen and pencil set by two men who jumped in his automobile when he stopped at the intersection of Grand boulevard and Magallowa avenue, he reported to police. The men, who did not display any weapon, made him drive to Broadway and Russell boulevard, where they forced him from the car and drove off.

Albert Madison, of 3112 North Nineteenth street, told police two youths threatened him with a knife and what he believed to be a toy pistol as he was walking at Twentieth and Branch streets. Madison ran and the youths turned and fled in the opposite direction.

Airman Schmidt to Seek Divorce And Will Fight for Custody of Son

Attorney Says Flyer's Mother-in-Law Sides
With Ex-P.O.W. and Could Be His Star Witness.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 16 (UP)—Airmen Daniel C. Schmidt, whose wife Una married another man while he was a prisoner of the Chinese Communists, has decided to sue for divorce.

Schmidt's attorney, Howard C. Welch, said the 23-year-old airman will charge extreme mental cruelty. He said the charges would be "very general in nature."

Schmidt will fight for his 2-year-old son and his wife's mother will help him, Welch said today.

Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Una's mother, could be his star witness if a court fight develops.

Sympathies With Boy.

"The girl's mother is on Dan's side," Welch said. "Her sympathies are all with the boy. She doesn't like the idea of the airman being left while in the service." Welch said. "She believes, as we do, that the health and welfare of the child is best with the father."

Welch said Mrs. Ferguson had promised to testify on behalf of Schmidt, if necessary, to help him win custody of the child.

Mrs. and Mrs. Ferguson, who live at Childs Meadow, 52 miles from Red Bluff, Calif., in Tehama county, joined Schmidt at Nevada City Saturday shortly after Schmidt's face-to-face meeting with his wife.

Schmidt's mother, Mrs. Nellie Peters, of Portland, Ore., has said she would be glad to take care of Danny if her son gets custody.

Schmidt returned home Friday after spending 32 months as prisoner of the Reds. He was one of 11 American airmen whose B-29 was shot down in the Korean war and who were released Aug. 2.

His wife, Una, 20, said she married Alford Fine, 21, a logger, last September "in Mexico." At the time, she claimed, she thought Schmidt was dead.

Schmidt and Una were married in May 1952. He went overseas five weeks later. His plane was shot down in January 1953.

In June 1954, the Air Force notified Una that her husband was probably alive and a prisoner in China. In September of that year, she married Fine, she said. Two months after that, she received official notification that Schmidt was alive and serving four years' imprisonment for "spying."

Schmidt told Welch yesterday that he had not talked of divorce with Una. But since then, Welch said, "he says he thinks divorce is the best solution."

Una's attorney, Harold Berliner, said he had no comment to make on Schmidt's decision until he receives official notification that a divorce suit has been filed. Una was believed in hiding with her second husband and little Danny.

HELL'S CANYON GROUP TO TAKE FIGHT TO COURT

Association Board's Decision — First Step to Be Request for FPC Rehearing.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Advocates of a federal multi-purpose dam at Hell's Canyon will carry their fight against an adverse decision by the Federal Power Commission to the federal courts, it was announced here today.

George Taylor, a member of the board of directors of the Hell's Canyon Association, which has been in the forefront of the fight against private development of the dam site, said the decision to challenge the FPC decision in court was reached yesterday at a meeting of the organization's directors in Portland, Ore.

The FPC announced Aug. 4 a ruling that the Federal Government should not develop the Hell's Canyon site. At the same time it granted to the Idaho Power Co. a 50-year license to build three low dams along the Hell's canyon reach of the Snake river between Oregon and Utah.

Reversible Errors Alleged. Details of the court attack on the FPC decision have not yet been worked out, Taylor said, but in general the ruling would be challenged on the ground of alleged reversible errors based on contentions that the commission failed to follow the record and the weight of testimony of witnesses in the hearings on the controversy.

Under FPC regulations, intervenors have 30 days from the date of decision to apply for a rehearing. The Hell's Canyon Association will file such a petition, but spokesmen indicated the organization had little hope that its petition would prevail.

The next step will be the filing of a suit in the United States Court of Appeals seeking to upset the original decision. The court action will be instituted about Sept. 1 either in Washington or at Portland.

Morse Attacks FPC.

The FPC decision has been under attack by public power advocates. Senator Wayne Morse (Dem., Oregon), yesterday charged the FPC with "giving away the finest remaining dam site on the North American continent to the Idaho Power Co."

At the same time he referred to Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, whose department has jurisdiction over dam sites as the "Secretary of Private Utilities." McKay, he said, had "walked out" on his obligations to the people in 1953 by withdrawing the Interior Department's objections to private development of the site.

LA SALLE'S SHIP, LAST SEEN IN 1679, REPORTED FOUND

TORONTO, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Toronto Telegram said today in a copyright story from Tobermory, Ont., that wreckage found on a Georgian Bay island may be that of La Salle's ship, the Griffon, lost for nearly three centuries.

The Griffon, built by the French explorer near the mouth of the Niagara river, was the first ship to sail Lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan. It was last seen Sept. 18, 1679, when it left Green Bay on Lake Michigan with 1200 pounds of fur and other cargo.

The paper said Orrie Vale, retired Tobermory fisherman, in 1900 discovered a 40-foot white oak keel, studded with hand-hammered spikes, in a secluded corner on an island in Lake Huron between Tobermory, at the tip of the Bruce peninsula, and Manitoulin island.

Retirement a year ago gave Vale time to pursue his theory that the wreckage was part of the Griffon.

"Historians and archeologists have checked the wood and iron work and have carefully examined its structure," the paper said. "They have found many clues confirming its authenticity but not a single detail which would dispute the claim."

60 COUNTY REGISTRATION OFFICES TO BE OPEN AUG. 26

Sixty special registration offices will be open in St. Louis county Aug. 26 so voters may register more conveniently in time for state referendums on a cigarette tax and school foundation program Oct. 4, and the county bond issue election Nov. 8, the Board of Election Commissioners announced yesterday.

Law requires that the books be closed from Aug. 29 until Nov. 23.

The main office at Clayton is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday until noon. For the special township intermediate registration Aug. 29 it will remain open until 9 p.m., and the special offices will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

RED CHINA RETURNS PARCELS INTENDED FOR U.S. AIRMEN

HONG KONG, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Chinese Communists yesterday returned 11 parcels the American Red Cross had delivered July 30 for the 14 United States airmen who were freed from China Aug. 4. An American Red Cross representative delivered 29 more parcels to Chinese Communist Red Cross officials at the Hong Kong border. They are for 29 airmen the Reds admit they are holding.

TIDER FINDS SELF IN DRIVER'S SEAT, THEN THINGS HAPPEN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 16 (AP)—A taxicab in which Maxine Bruce was a passenger collided with another automobile yesterday. While the drivers were discussing the superficial damage, Miss Bruce tried to slide past the cab's steering wheel.

Police said this is what happened next.

Miss Bruce, 26 years old, accidentally released the emergency brake and stepped on the accelerator. The cab darted forward, bowling over Sam Russell, 28, and David Williams, 21. Both were taken to a hospital with leg injuries. After striking them, the cab rammed another automobile, which in turn was knocked forward and hit Jessie Oliver, 33. He too was taken to a hospital.

Miss Bruce told police she had never driven an automobile. She was charged with careless driving.

ARMY MAN WEEPS ON WITNESS STAND

Accused Lieutenant Tells of Capture, Early Days in Korean Prison.

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Aug. 16 (UP)—First Lt. Jefferson D. Erwin today took the stand in his own defense against charges that he collaborated with the enemy while a prisoner of war in Korea, but he broke down a half an hour later.

Erwin began to cry after he had testified about his capture and first days in a prison camp known as "Death Valley."

Erwin started his testimony in a loud, clear voice. He told how he was captured Dec. 1, 1950, with 15 men in a shell crater.

He said he and his men, members of a Second Division artillery outfit, abandoned their ammunition convoy and took to the hills after destroying the trucks. He said he himself fired their way to a bomb crater and in the morning found the lip of the shell hole lined with Chinese Communists.

"It was just like shooting fish in a barrel," Erwin said. "There was nothing to do but be captured or killed."

The Chinese then began marching him and his men to "Death Valley."

"My feet were blistered badly," he said. "It was blister on top of blister."

At "Death Valley," an old Japanese mining camp, he was put to work in the kitchen.

It was at "Death Valley," he said, that he met a man named Shapiro, who Erwin understood to be a correspondent for the London Daily Worker, a Communist newspaper.

Shapiro tried to convince the prisoners that to sign documents was the only way to get their names before the public to show their relatives at home they still were alive.

By the Associated Press.

Yesterday the president of the so-called prisoners' Central Committee in Korea testified that he and Erwin stole and destroyed numerous Communist propaganda documents bearing the names of American officers.

Lt. Erwin, Blanchard (Okla.), career soldier, is charged with making pro-Communist statements and aiding the enemy while a prisoner in 1951.

Maj. Ambrose H. Nugent of Merrill, Wis., a star defense witness at Erwin's court-martial, said the documents were in the room of British trooper Ronald A. Cocks, a member of the peace committee at the P'yongyang prisoner of war camp.

Nugent said Cocks had confided in him earlier that he was a card-carrying Communist. For that reason, he said, the senior American officer at the camp insisted that someone other than Cocks be named president of the prisoners' committee. Nugent got the job.

The documents destroyed by Nugent and Erwin were to have been the basis for a propaganda book Cocks and a Chinese Communist planned to write. Nugent testified. He said the articles had been sent to the committee from other P.O.W. camps in North Korea.

Nugent was acquitted of collaboration charges earlier this year at a Fort Sill (Okla.) court-martial.

He said he stole 40 to 50 pieces of paper from Cocks's room. Erwin stole some also. They tried to keep them to eventually show the officers named, but had to burn them because of a "shake-down" conducted by their captors.

EXCURSION BOAT IS SMASHED ON ROCKS, AT LEAST 20 DEAD

ST. BRIEUC, France, Aug. 16 (UP)—Police said today they had recovered 20 bodies from the wreck of an excursion boat which smashed on the rocks of the Brittany coast.

Many of the victims were children dressed in their Sunday best for the Assumption day holiday. Authorities feared the toll might go higher since the exact number of passengers was unknown.

The boat, carrying some 60 persons on a pleasure cruise yesterday, was sailing between Brest and the Arcouet Peninsula. A sudden fog forced the launch to hug the coast and it rammed the rocks.

PRISON RECREATION DIRECTOR NAMED AT JEFFERSON CITY

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 16—Appointment of Arthur Norman of Jefferson City as director of recreation at the state penitentiary here was announced late yesterday by Warden Ralph N. Edson. Norman has been recreation director for the State Park Board for four years.

The prison has not had a full-time recreation director for some time. Such direction as has been available for convicts when on the prison playground was provided by prison chaplains.

Norman was one of three candidates who qualified for the director's post in state merit system examinations by the State Personnel Advisory Board.

He is a graduate of Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo., and the Chillicothe Business College, where he received letters in all major sports. He was an athletic coach in Missouri high schools for 11 years and formerly was a veterans service officer at Chillicothe. The salary of the recreation director is $4224 a year.

PROBATIONS IN POLICE COURT NEARLY DOUBLE IN 12 MONTHS

The number of law violators placed on probation by St. Louis police court judges has nearly doubled during the past fiscal year, compared with the preceding 12 months, it was shown in the annual report of the court's parole and probation department released yesterday.

During the year ended last March 30, a total of 2527 persons were laced on probation, compared with 1325 the preceding year.

Biggest increase was in the category of traffic offenses. Probation cases rose from 50 to 560. Of the latter number, 425 persons attended the court's traffic school, placed in operation during the last reporting period.

Milton Eisenhower Returns. NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (UP)—Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University and brother of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, returned today on the liner United States with his 17-year-old daughter from a two-month vacation in Europe.

“Don’t run out—

spare!”

This little lady, painted for us by Norman Rockwell, has just moved into your grocery store.

Her purpose in life is to do something about the fact that everybody’s always running out of Kellogg’s Corn Flakes. To remind you, happily, that a spare in time saves trouble.

So she’ll be waving to you, from packages of the cereal with the flavor no one has ever been able to copy. (The big crisp flakes that taste best to more people—always have, still do.) And if you pick her up, everyone will be happy!

Scene at Kingshighway and West Pine boulevards after a section of the north wall of the old Parkview Hotel collapsed across sidewalk and into West Pine today. The wall fell as a demolition crew was at work. No one was injured. The four-story hotel is being razed to make way for a new 16-story apartment building. The Parkview was built about the time of the World Fair in 1904. It has been closed for about a year.

AMERICANS ON GUARD IN KOREA

United States troops armed with rifles, tear gas grenades and baseball bats of new road-block on causeway leading from mainland to Wolpi island watch South Korean demonstrators. The Americans, using tear gas and high pressure water hoses, have been able so far to hold off South Koreans who are demanding that Communist Czech and Polish members of the neutral nations truce supervisory team on Wolpi be ousted. The Republic of Korea has accused them of spying for Communist North Korea.

NEW SIGHT TO ARABS

Although King Saud of Saudi Arabia appears to be unconcerned, his aids seem to be somewhat startled by the sight of unveiled women at Tehran. The picture was made just before an official order against photographs showing the King with unveiled women.

Nothing to Sneeze At

Prosperity Gets the Blame for Hay Fever

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP).

AMERICA, which leads the world in telephones and automobiles, also has more hay fever victims than any other country.

Why? Prosperity, good old prosperity.

HAL BOYLE

This is the theory of Dr. Rudolph Mayer, discoverer of Pyribenzamine, an antihistamine used in the treatment of hay fever.

In Europe, where every available piece of land is tilled or utilized in some way, there is no room for ragweed, which is blamed for 80 percent of all hay fever.

"Only in the United States can we afford the luxury of unused open fields and lots, where ragweed grows," said Dr. Mayer.

WHILE HAY

FEVER may be a by-product of national prosperity, it gives its victims—whose annual seasonal torture begins in August—anything but a sense of individual well-being.

And the ailment is on the increase.

The United States Public Health Service says there are nearly 4,000,000 asthmatics and hay fever sufferers in this country. It is estimated the two diseases cost some 24,750,000 lost workdays each year.

ONE OF THE SOREST POINTS with those afflicted with hay fever is that they meet with little sympathy from their non-allergic friends. Their plight is regarded as oddly humorous. The surest way to make an enemy of a man with hay fever is to tell him, "It's all in your mind."

It isn't ragweed pollen in itself that causes hay fever, but certain chemicals in it resembling the chemicals in viruses. These chemicals start the liver to manufacturing protective antibodies. They in turn produce histamine, a decomposition product which causes the wheezing, sneezing, eye-watering nose-running weapons of hay fever.

DR. MAYER SEES no immediate hope of cutting down the incidence of hay fever. He expects the number of cases to grow in the next few years.

Many Europeans who never had hay fever before developed it on coming to this country. Dr. Mayer, who came here in 1942, is an exception.

"So far, I haven't had any," he said. After spending 25 years studying allergies, the last thing he wants is hay fever.

He knows it's nothing to be sneezed at.

'Wild' Children

By Angelo Patri

WE have a fine new lot of children. They are living in the new housing developments. Their parents are young people who like to visit each other, which makes for pleasant relations in the neighborhood.

ANGELO PATRI

They behave like wild ones. They jump at our children; roll all over the floor; jump up and down on the couch; click on and off the electric buttons, until I am ready to scream. But their parents rarely say as much as, "Don't do that, dear."

OF COURSE THERE ARE TWO PARTIES to visiting—the hosts and the guests. The hosts should provide for the entertainment of the children, as well as for the older guests. This is often overlooked and the children left to their own resources, with disastrous consequences. The home children are likely to respond to the excitement of having visitors in unexpected and unhappy ways. The guest children feel freed of home restrictions, and the combination may become a bedlam.

Set aside a room, if possible, or a corner of one, apart from the older people. Provide a game or two. Puzzles are fine for indoor occupation. Building blocks and tinker toys are very good. For the little girls, dolls and doll houses are perfect. Of course, if there is an outdoor play place, the greater part of the problem is solved.

USUALLY THE GUESTS ARE EXPECTED. The home children can be prepared for their visitors. They can be told what to expect and how to meet it. If there is a toy that is especially precious, it can be put out of sight. This prevents battles over the use of such a possession.

Refreshments are part of the entertainment. If the children can have a table by themselves, under the eye of the hostess, so much the better. If they can have dishes reduced to their size, they will enjoy that, too.

So much for the hosts' side of the matter. Now if the visitors will behave as visitors should all will be well. This means that the parents of the visiting children instruct them about their manners before starting. It means, too, that if their children should forget, that they attend to them promptly.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A NOISY young gent with a too-snazzy sports coat and college crew haircut was tossed out of the back door of a fancy saloon recently. He staggered back inside, grabbed the official bouncer by a lapel and snarled, "I guess you don't know I come from one of the most important families in Boston."

So the O.B. begged his pardon and—kicked him out of the front door.

THOSE INDIANS who relay messages by means of smoke signals from one hilltop to another, reports Sid Skolsky, must be reading their ads very conscientiously. They now use filtered smoke.

Husband's Folks as Grandparents

Here Are Some Rules for Helping to Get Along With Them

By Lee Graham

Third and final chapter in a series on one of the toughest problems of family life: The in-laws. From the book, "If You Are a Woman," published by Thomas Y. Crowell Co.

A NEW baby makes changes in the attitude of in-laws. The indifferent father-in-law suddenly has a light in his eyes. He is eminently proud of his daughter-in-law who gives birth to a son so that the family surname can carry on for another generation. This inclines him to make elaborate plans for the boy's future. He invariably says, "I'll make a real man out of him by the time he grows up. Just leave him to me."

If he is presented with a granddaughter, he may not swell with as much pride but he is soon melted by her little-girl charms, looks for every pretext to visit her. But he seldom forces his suggestions or attentions. He leaves the meddling to his wife.

So it is the mother-in-law, now turned grandmother, who is more likely to create tension. Does her new role change her for the better? That depends on her reaction to her son becoming a father.

She may see the birth of her grandchild as a sign of her own destruction, an irrevocable proof that she is a finished, out-dated individual. This is a neurotic reaction, to be sure, but it does occur.

Mixed with it is the mother-in-law's fear that her son's fatherhood will smother the final link in the chain that binds him to her. How can he ever be her little boy again, she asks herself sadly, now that he has his own child?

The grandmother, of course, may display her rejection less subtly. She may say, "I'm sure they're very sweet children. But I get nervous when I'm around them too much. They make such a racket!"

With that she may confine

MOTHER MAY BE SO INTENSE IN HER LOVE FOR THE BABY THAT IT UPSETS THE DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

her visits to rare occasions, during which she is quite cool. Uncomfortable as this may be, it is certainly less troublesome than the more belligerent kind.

BUT if the mother-in-law becomes the baby's substitute for the baby she has lost, the relationship between her and her daughter-in-law takes a turn for the better. The grandmother no longer imagines herself as an abandoned woman in transferring her love and interests to the grandchild, her preoccupation with her own son is weakened. It makes little difference that this is not her baby but her son's baby.

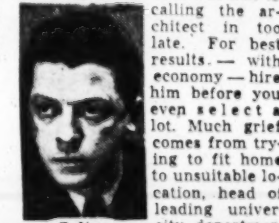

She experiences an upsurge of youthfulness. The birth of her grandchild is her renaissance. In her enthusiasm, she switches her attention from her son and his wife to their child. That, of course, removes some of the pressure which was being put on them.

But there may be one stumbling block in this improved state of affairs. The mother-in-law may be so intense in her devotion to the baby that it upsets the daughter-in-law. The real mother feels as if she were being robbed of full possession. She also feels that her baby is being spoiled, which is further cause for resentment.

More for Your Money

By Lawrence Galton

If you're planning to build a home and use an architect, beware some mistakes that are becoming all too common. One is calling the architect in too late. For best results, hire him before you even select a lot. Much grief comes from trying to fit home to unsuitable location, head of leading university department of architecture reports.

GALTON

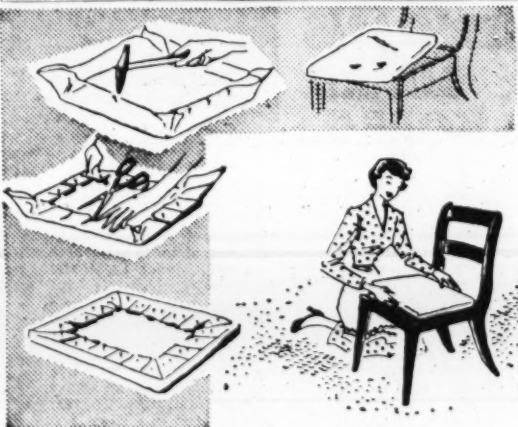

Beware, too, of stipulating materials picked up from national magazines; many are practical for one section of country, not for another. Also avoid clipping a lot of ideas from magazines and insisting architect put them together like jigsaw puzzle. You'll have no house of your own—only a copy of something else. If you use an architect, use him to design home individually fitted to your family's needs and personality—and adaptable to its likely future.

TRENDS AND TIP-OFFS: Furniture prices expected to go up 3 to 5 percent this fall. Despite some general tightening of mortgage money since spring, if you have extra good credit rating, recent survey shows you have good chance of getting mortgage with lower-than-usual interest rates. First all-transistor phonograph due this fall. Using tiny transistors to replace vacuum tubes, a battery-operated portable model weighs under 10 pounds, measures only 9 1/2 by 10 1/2 by 8 inches, is said to play 150 hours on four 10-cent flashlight batteries.

GOOD BUYMANSHIP: Buying an electric shaver? Because skins vary considerably from extremely sensitive to very tough and good electric shavers do too, best bet is to try before you buy. Many dealers offer 14-day free trial without obligation. Imperfections in carpets are often so slight some dealers mix "second grade" carpets with technically perfect. However, you can often identify seconds by mill marks. On one major line, gold star every three feet indicates imperfection. On another, double X mark every three feet is indicator. On third, it's double black line.

Designing Woman Leather Tops for Chairs

By Elizabeth Hillyer

HERE IS HOW TO UPHOLSTER.

IT'S a simple matter to cover the slip seats of chairs with top quality upholstery leather, and such leather in the right sizes for the purpose is on its way to the stores. This really will settle the problem of dining chairs, in the most attractive, practical and longest lasting way. Covering a slip seat with leather varies only slightly from the method of covering it with fabric. The leather must be turned back at least two inches, then tacked lightly at the center of each side, and toward each end. Cuts must be made about two inches apart, and each cut strip must be pulled tightly, first one toward the center, then the opposite one and so on, to fit the leather neatly. The position of the tacks is changed as the fitting dictates, and corner excess is cut off, and the remainder fitted down, one side slightly overlapping the other. A quick check of the top appearance shows when the tacks can be driven into the seat frame firmly—and there you are.

MRS. D. G. "Would you advise me to give up the idea of refinishing an oak dining set which the children have scuffed and scratched with sharp toys until the finish is all but removed? I don't want the job to look amateurish because the furniture will be seen in an ell from the living room of our new home. The chair backs, table top and buffet doors in dark oak have an inlaid tulip design set into a circle of light oak. The set is eight years old and looks it."

It would be difficult indeed to refinish the decorated parts of the furniture, and hardly easy to turn the scratched surfaces into smooth ones. The job isn't worth doing unless the damage no longer shows. Experiment with the chair that's in the worst condition to see what you're in for in damage repair and if results are good enough to be worth the effort. Paint over all would probably be most successful, but the present finish must be removed completely in any case, and you will probably need to fill the pores of the wood.

Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "Furniture Refinishing—How to Do It Yourself"—starts you off to success on the first refinishing job you ever tried—gives advice on finish repair, too. Send 25 cents in coin with your request for the booklet and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

My Neighbor Says:

S MALL hairline cracks in concrete can be filled with a grout made by mixing Portland cement and water to the consistency of thick paint. Dampen the area and then scrub the group over the surface with a stiff brush. It will be worked into the cracks and effectively seal them up.

Potato salad tastes extra-good if you cube the potatoes while they are hot and douse them with French dressing. Then just before serving gently mix in mayonnaise, diced celery, diced hard-cooked egg and any other additions you wish.

Asbestos Shingles. ASBESTOS shingles, in case you are interested, are made out of portland cement and asbestos. They make a fine material for roofs and for sidewalls because they don't burn, don't rot and aren't bothered by insects. Also, they will last almost indefinitely without much in the way of upkeep. Asbestos shingles are sort of brittle and therefore you've got to be careful not to bump them. When you want to drive a nail through them to fasten something to the wall or to refasten a loose shingle, first drill a hole through the shingle and then drive the nail through this hole. Be careful not to strike the shingle with the hammer. Surface dirt on asbestos shingles can often be removed by just brushing with a stiff brush. Plain water will also remove a lot of the dirt. When the shingles become very soiled there are special asbestos shingle cleaning compounds available. Many people with asbestos shingle on the sidewalls of their homes don't know that these shingles can be painted. They don't require paint for protection but if they become badly stained or if you wish to change their color you simply give them a coat of paint. Ordinary oil paints suitable for exterior woodwork can be used on these shingles but the shingles must be bone dry and the practice is to first coat them with linseed oil to seal the pores. A less complicated and safer finish to use is a paint especially formulated for asbestos shingles and other masonry surfaces.

The Del Monte

By Stan Delaplane

When I was a boy, the Del Monte was curtailed and tasseled and had green plush seats with antimacassars. All the BIG people rode down to the old, magnificent Hotel Del Monte. Presidents and bankers and stock brokers. The ambition of every small boy was to be engineer on the Del Monte. With a striped, peaked cap and a hand on the throttle and the lonely whistle blowing from the crossings.

I think the Del Monte these days is hailed by diesel. Anyway the whistle hasn't got that wonderful whoooooo-whooooo sound anymore. Just a horn blast like any truck.

THE CLUB CAR in that time was run by Oliver Millett who was the porter. He rode the Del Monte for 30 or 40 years. Up to San Francisco, down to Monterey.

He served highballs to Secretaries of State and tea to ladies. He knew all the mothers and fathers and all the children. When the children grew up, they brought their children on the Del Monte. Children were well-behaved on the Del Monte because everybody got dressed to go up to the city.

After these 30 or 40 years with the Southern Pacific, Oliver was retired. The Southern Pacific bought a big new steel car all trimmed in gray-green and dusty red. They named it the "Oliver Millett" and you can read the name on the side of the car in big gold letters.

This was the most sensible gesture I have seen by a big corporation. I really enjoy riding this car more.

I THINK MOST of the Monterey-San Francisco people go up by Southwest Air Lines these days. They flip you over the hills in 40 minutes. But the passengers never see the apricot trees loaded with fruit. And the pickers on ladders in the morning.

Nor can you stand on the back platform and smell the wet fields by the coast in the evening. Or have a leisurely drink and an unhurried conversation with a neighbor while the sun is letting down far out on the Pacific.

I fly the airlines and find them comfortable. But there is a price on speed. The price is the luxury of spending time.

There were no small fry on the Del Monte. So I could not question them on the desirability of being engineer on the express.

The engineer has competition these days I imagine and must keep on his toes. A small boy today can be a Space Cadet or airplane pilot. A fishbowl helmet with built-in walkie-talkie may outweigh the peaked and striped hat.

It may be that a three-hour jump to San Francisco may seem mighty slow to a boy who goes to Mars on a 15-minute TV show.

AS A MATTER OF FACT, a train seems just a little humpy after riding the big airplanes. Those big smooth four-engine jobs that lift you up to 20,000 feet and slide along so you can set a glass of water on the floor.

Still this leaves today's children without certain knowledge. How many kids today, do you think, know that if you put the spoon in the coffee cup, the coffee will settle down and not slop over the edge?

We ALL knew that when I rode the old Del Monte. I hadn't thought about it for years until I saw the coffee begin to bounce this morning. Then it all came back and I was as happy as if I'd found a dime in an old pair of pants.

Planned Retirement

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

SUCCESSFUL retirement requires careful and intelligent planning. Worry and panic accomplish nothing except frustration. The first attitude guarantees happiness, the second nothing but misery. Mrs. I. thinks her husband is off on the wrong foot, and rather early in life, too.

"He's in his early forties," she tells me, "but already worrying about what will happen when he retires, or if his company should quit business. We are comfortably fixed now, but he has the example of his father, who lost his job and money at the age of 50 and was a burden to all the relatives until his death. My husband sometimes acts as though he were faced right now with the same fate. How can I help him?"

A LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY has suggested six points, that everyone would do well to consider, in order to prolong usefulness and avoid unemployment in later life: Keep your mind in action. Keep it flexible by getting new interests, learning new things, all the time. Keep out of that rut, at any cost!

Have a specialty that is likely to be steady in demand—not one that is too narrow and likely to become obsolete. Do you remember the old story of the beggar who was asked why he didn't get a job and replied that he couldn't find work in his specialty? In answer to further inquiry he explained that his specialty was "making smoked glasses to view total eclipses of the sun."

MAKE NEW CONTACTS all the time. You never know when they will be needed—or invaluable. Watch your personality and temperament. Don't let yourself become crabby, suspicious, pessimistic. Remember that most workers, male and female, are dropped for faults of personality, not lack of skill. Watch your health. Watch your personal appearance. Don't let yourself become shabby or unkempt. Every adult of either sex would profit by checking up periodically on these points. Attention to them may make the difference between prosperity and happiness in later years, or poverty and misery.

Ex-St. Louisan Finds Niche in Drama

W. David Sievers Never Got to Be Hero, but He's Happy Teaching and Writing About Stage

W. DAVID SIEVERS... HE'S NOW DIRECTOR OF DRAMA AT LONG BEACH (CALIF.) STATE COLLEGE AND AUTHOR OF THE BOOK, "FREUD ON BROADWAY."

By Edward A. Harris
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
LONG BEACH, Calif., Aug. 16.

W. DAVID SIEVERS had a secret and told it to every director he met. He yearned to play the suave and dashing Lothario who whisks the lovely ingenue from beneath the falling final curtain to the nearest altar.

But from the moment W. David Sievers began to act in high school and college productions in his native St. Louis, he was frustrated. The other fellow always got the girl. By the time W. David Sievers was on the professional stage, his ego knocked lower than the footlights by the character bit parts he was assigned.

Enter now the highly respected analyst of the drama, Prof. W. David Sievers (yes, they're closely related) of Long Beach (Calif.) State College, whose book, "Freud on Broadway," has been highly commended by critics as a brilliant study of the impact of Freud on the American theater.

As an astute student of Freud, Prof. Sievers can well understand the hidden emotional springs that first impelled young W. David Sievers to strive to be the hero in the glittering world of make-believe. If his understanding has a touch of sympathy in it perhaps he can be forgiven, for as you may have surmised, Prof. W. David Sievers and W. David Sievers are one and the same.

It may not be wholly accurate to say they are precisely the same. Gone is the frustration. Gone, along with a portion of hair, is his floored ego. What hair he has left is a healthy sandy hue, and what ego he has left is equally healthy in an unobtrusive sort of way. For Sievers today is director of drama at the university, a position that gives him tremendous satisfaction in inspiring others to act well—including husky college football players in Romeo roles. Born in St. Louis 35 years ago, the son of Attorney Samuel Sievers and Pauline Sievers, who for many years acted in Little Theater plays, Sievers was never overly fond of his first given active in college dramatics. Once he was given a part for which he began rehearsing at home. He powdered his hair to make it look gray, bent over in a low stoop, clutched a cane and said his lines in a quavering voice. This went on for a time until his father, looking up from his newspaper, asked David how old he was supposed to be.

"Fifty-five," David told him. "Fifty-five!" exclaimed his father, "why I'm fifty-five! Do I look like that?"

Considerably chagrined, David tossed away the cane, stood up straight as a ramrod and spoke his lines, then and later on the stage, with manly zest.

AFTER finishing his first year at Washington University, he transferred to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he cast his lot in with the Carolina Playmakers and had to learn to act without any shoes, since many of the plays dealt with folk drama. By the time he graduated with a major in drama, in 1940, he had tough soles and a Phi Beta Kappa key.

He was certain he wanted to be an actor, and he still longed to play the male lead in a play—any old play. But no one bothered him with professional offers, so he took work as a radio announcer in Goldsboro, N.C. In his spare time he directed some plays for the local Thespians, and it was his custom to hold post-play "critiques" at which he invited open and blunt criticism. At one of these sessions at Goldsboro, he was sharply criticized by a local actress, and it became so "interesting and consuming" that Sievers had to make a final choice between teaching and the outside competitive world.

"She was right about that scene," Sievers laughs. "I was so impressed that I decided to try playing the romanticist in real life instead of on the stage."

It took nearly a year, but they were married in the spring of 1941 and have three children: Roy, nine, Donna Rose, six, and Sandra Louise, four.

From Goldsboro, David went to the Dramatic Workshop of the New School for Social Research in New York, again at the suggestion of his stage mentor, Strickland. There he had the advantage of working and acting with many European refugee actors, some of them renowned in their homelands and even internationally. But the going in New York was no bed of roses. For two years he pounded the pavements in search of dramatic roles, winning an occasional bit part in shows with Sam Jaffe and Zachary Scott, going on an Eastern tour with Dance Players as an assistant stage manager, and otherwise butting his ego against a stone curtain.

Finally I concluded I just wasn't God's gift to Broadway," said Sievers. "I was offered a chance to teach drama at Stanford, thanks to Strickland, and took it."

There he taught for two years, got his master's degree one morning and the same afternoon was inducted into the Army and sent to Camp Crowder, Mo., for basic training. Sievers, mainly due to a fondness for trains ended up in the Transportation Corps, and two years later was discharged—in San Francisco.

THIS being near Hollywood, Sievers decided he'd take another crack at the entertainment world. There followed a whirl at radio transcription, assistant producer of radio shows, and writer-producer of a TV quiz program called "It's a Hit." Concurrently he began to teach drama again, this time at the University of California in Los Angeles under Kenneth MacGowan, a former St. Louisan. For four years he taught MacGowan's Theater Arts Department, and it became so "interesting and consuming" that Sievers had to make a final choice between teaching and the outside competitive world.

Sievers is happy about the book, and happy about his job. He feels that all of his past experiences, however frustrating they may have seemed at the time, proved to be valuable in preparing him for his present teaching post. He no longer covets the lover role. "Anyway," he says wryly, patting a bald spot on his head, "I'd have to wear a toupee!"

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. CAN ANY ONE PERSON COMPLETELY SATISFY ALL THE NEEDS OF SOMEONE ELSE? YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1. "This is one of the most disastrous facts in our relationships," says W. Clark Ellzey. "Romantic love makes a couple think they can do so, but they are more or less looking through rose-colored glasses. Areas where we fail to satisfy our partner's needs are danger spots, and every marriage has some. The sense of personal integrity which makes a person dependable, is foundation material for any marriage."

Answer to Question 2. Unless the child is exceptionally well-balanced, he is headed for a pretty tough life—a life of dependence on other people for the most trivial decisions. If a boy, he will likely develop into the typical, spineless, "Milquetoast" and marry a woman to lean on when dear Mama is gone. If a girl, she is likely to become one of the whining, clinging vines that curse a man's life.

Answer to Question 3. It is about the only thing that holds society together. If everyone expressed his "honest opinions" of everyone else, we would have to call out the police. In truth, most of our "honest opinions" are not honest at all, but usually consist of jealousies, envies, desires to make people conform to our notions to build up our inferiorities. They are not the result of scientific measurements, or even of a calm, tolerant judgment. It is best to keep most of them to ourselves, since a vast proportion of them are neither honest nor true.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

TODAY we have four questions about sharks.

Q. Are there many kinds of sharks?
A. Yes, about 240 kinds are known. These include tiger sharks, dogfish sharks, nurse sharks, soupfin, sand sharks, thresher, hammerheads, whale sharks, basking sharks and many others.

Q. Do the majority of sharks hurt people?
A. No. Most of them mind their own business, which is to catch fish and other animals of the ocean. The gigantic whale shark, never attacks people. Instead it feeds on plankton, which is made up of hundreds of small forms of ocean life.

Q. Which sharks are man-eaters?
A. White sharks, blue sharks, tiger sharks and hammerheads are among those which have been known to kill people. Now and then a mako or a nurse shark seizes a human being. Those sharks, and a few other kinds, can be described as man-eaters, but it would be a mistake to suppose that they spend much time looking for human victims. They feed mainly on fish.

In addition to fish, these sharks eat crabs, lobsters, squid, octopus and sea snakes. Rarely the bodies of cats and goats have been found in their stomachs, along with pieces of clothing. It may be figured that these fell from ocean vessels, or were washed to sea from beaches.

Q. Are baby sharks born alive?
A. Many of them are. Sharks are among the few kinds of fish which produce living young. Instead of laying eggs which hatch into fish.

Many baby sharks are more than a foot long at the time of birth. A baby tiger shark is about 18 inches in length, and a baby hammerhead may measure 20 inches.

Some kinds of sharks lay eggs. These include the dogfish sharks. For Nature Section of your scrapbook.
